State Funeral, Then Search for Chief

QUEBEC (CP) — The body of Daniel Johnson, late premier of Quebec, will lie in state in the Quebec legislative assembly until Monday, when a state funeral will be held in the Quebec Basilica, a spokesman for his government said Thursday night.

Jean-Jacques Bertrand, justice minister in Johnson's government, said the premier's body will be placed in the legislative assembly today.

The premier also will lie in state, after the funeral, in Montreal and in St. Pie de Bagot, where Johnson maintained a residence in his own provincial constituency of Bagot.

The Quebec Basilica is the church of Maurice Cardinal

A caucus of Union Nationale

members of the legislative assembly will meet next Wednesday to discuss the choosing of a successor to Johnson.

Bertrand said the meeting

would take place here after the funeral and interment of the premier.

Bertrand, who acted as premier during Johnson's 12-week absence following a heart attack July 3, said the decision to hold the meeting was made at day-long meetings Thursday among the men who served in Johnson's cabinet.

Asked if this means that Quebec will be without a government until next week, he said:

"According to some authors, the most absolute rule is that all must ship with the death of a prime minister. Ministers are only MLAs now. Other authors... take exactly the opposite view."

Bertrand added that "we will apply the rule of prudence" and the men who served in Johnson's cabinet will attend to normal administrative rules only "in absolutely urgent cases."

Johnson's death leaves the standing in the 106-seat legislature at Union Nationale 55; Liberals 48; Independent 3; vacant 2.

In Montreal, Johnson's body will lie in state at the provincial justice building. At Mrs. Johnson's request, the building will remain open throughout the night.

On Tuesday, the premier's body will be taken to St. Pie de Bagot, 40 miles southeast of Montreal, where it will lie in state at a school until shortly before interment.

Bertrand said the province of Quebec will be officially in mourning until Tuesday. Government offices in the province will be closed Monday.

Tributes, Sadness Flow Across Land

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tributes, sadness and shock were expressed Thursday following the death of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

Prime Minister Trudeau, moved by the "deepest grief and shock," said Johnson's death deprived the people of Quebec of a dedicated political leader.

"While a staunch defender of the interests of his province, Mr. Johnson nevertheless attached great importance to the preservation of Canadian unity," the prime minister's statement said.

In Paris, President Charles de Gaulle said it was a "very great loss for all Frenchmen, those of France and those of Canada."

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said, "Premier Johnson gave himself totally to his exacting task of administering our sister province."

Prince Edward Island will observe a period of mourning. Premier Alex Campbell said, "Quebec Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who lost out to Johnson at a Union Nationale leadership convention in 1961 and who served as acting premier during Johnson's convalescence from a heart attack in July, called the late premier a 'seasoned, intelligent and loyal leader.'"

Ontario Premier John Robarts said Johnson was his "friend of many years."

Premier Walter Weir of Manitoba said he "always admired and respected his courage and determination in fighting for his principles."

Johnson was described by Saskatchewan Premier R. S. Thatcher as "a man of strong and sincere convictions."

"He was a young man who had much to contribute to his country," said Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

In Montreal, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Johnson's death

"brings to an end a 30-year personal friendship." Flags throughout the city and sub-

U.S. Changes UN Guard

Bennett to Coquitlam, Others:

Money for School Sites Only When You Need It

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Thursday that Coquitlam and other B.C. municipalities will get government money for school and school sites only when they need it.

"As minister of finance I will see that the money is available," he said in an interview. "But it will be up to the school boards and the department of education to decide what is necessary."

"Money now is at its highest price and we only want to build those school rooms and libraries that are necessary."

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has guaranteed more than $400,000,000 since 1955 for school boards and that the amount is more than any other province in Canada.

He said the Coquitlam school board could go out and try and raise its own money but it would be next to impossible on the present money market.

Earlier Thursday a telegram signed by 1,800 persons at a protest meeting in Coquitlam Wednesday night was sent to Mr. Bennett. It demanded the release of $5,000,000 in school funds approved by ratepayers.

"We won't release any specific amount," he said. "We'll release the money as required."

"The Coquitlam school board there would be more money to should consider building a second school on existing sites before buying more land. Then taxpayers."

HHH: End U.S. Policing

Put UN in Lines To Guard Peace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Vice-President Hubert Humphrey Thursday unveiled his "new strategy for peace" providing for an international force under the UN to take over the role as world policeman.

The Democratic nominee proposed in his speech prepared for San Francisco's Commonwealth Club that an international peacekeeping force be sent to Vietnam, as well as other world hot spots, once hostilities are halted in Southeast Asia.

Humphrey suggested three steps:

● Military assistance programs to help less developed countries prepare units of their armed forces for UN and regional peacekeeping assignments.

● A new effort to resolve the financial and constitutional crisis now hampering the UN.

● Leadership in establishment of a UN peacekeeping fund beginning with $30,000,000 to help the UN launch emergency operations "without delay."

Problems 'Inside Quebec'

Ottawa Fears Vacuum at Top

Turner, Marchand Foresee Troubles

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers said Thursday they foresee problems within Quebec as a result of Premier Daniel Johnson's death.

"He was a great Canadian and I think the fact of his death will cause tremendous problems in Quebec and in some of the negotiations we have before us," Justice Minister John Turner said in an interview.

ANOTHER VIEW

Forestry Minister Jean Marchand also referred to a constitutional conference planned for December.

Asked whether the Johnson death might result in strained Quebec-Ottawa relations, Marchand said the "main problem" will be within Quebec itself.

The death would weaken somewhat the provincial government's position until a new leader is chosen and "really in control of the situation."

NO IDEA

Asked whether the death would result in postponement of the December conference, Marchand said the federal government didn't know.

It would all depend on whether the Union Nationale chose a permanent leader right away or named a temporary one until a party convention could be held to choose Johnson's successor.

Pentagon Has War

On Poverty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Clark Clifford Thursday night announced an ambitious plan to try to improve American life in the way the Pentagon chooses to spend its billions.

By carefully applying its conscience in deciding how and where to spend defence money, the Pentagon can provide ghetto employment, cheaper hospitals, a lesson in building low-cost housing and education for thousands of young men ill-equipped for work, Clifford said.

While recognizing that "there will be those who will argue that the defence department is not a social welfare institution," Clifford pledged action on a number of fronts.

Quebec Chief Dies in Bed

Former Rival Weeps Openly

MANICOUAGAN, Que. (CP) — Joseph Francis Daniel Johnson, premier of Quebec for two fateful years, died Thursday only one day after reassuring Canadians that his government had no desire to break up the country.

Premier Johnson, 53, died in his sleep here a week after returning to duties following a July 3 heart attack.

HOOR LONG

Johnson's appearance at an hour-long nationally televised news conference Wednesday was marked by his usual mastery of performance in French and English.

He seemed to allay English-Canada's fears of French President de Gaulle's influence in French-Canadian thinking. Apparently fit after his illness, Johnson confirmed reports he planned to visit de Gaulle in October but stressed that the French leader did not consult him before making scornful remarks about the Canadian Confederation.

"Let's say the general can have his opinions on the Canadian federation," Johnson added. "We have our own. The problem won't be solved in France. The constitutional problem is Canadian. It will be solved in Canada."

LAST BUCKET

But the premier, whose own policy was summed up in the phrase "equality or independence" for French-Canadians, again stated his government's right to cultivate relations with France and other French-language countries.

Johnson came here after his news conference with the intention of presiding Thursday at ceremonies marking the pouring of the last bucket of cement at a giant Hydre-Quebec power project in this community 250 miles northeast of Quebec City.

In a light-hearted session, he visited a tavern with project workers, bought drinks for the house and drank two bottles of

Wallace Bounces Adoring Blonde

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Reports of a romance between George Wallace and a shapely blonde campaign worker were described by his headquarters Thursday. "False, untrue" and an attempt to damage his campaign for the presidency.

The statement added that the girl, Ja-Neen Welch, had been dismissed from the campaign force.

Wallace, former governor of Alabama, is a third-party candidate in the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential elections. His wife Lurleen died of cancer on May 7.

Thursday's statement from Wallace's headquarters came after Miss Welch, who runs an advertising agency in Indianapolis, told reporters she had been travelling "full-time" with Wallace in his campaign plane and added: "I wouldn't object to being the next Mrs. Wallace."

The statement said Miss Welch's "erratic behavior, including her reports of having visions, extrasensory perception and being a seer," led to the decision to dismiss her from the campaign last Friday.

In Indianapolis, Miss Welch, who gives her age as 26, said: "It does not change my feelings toward the governor. I'm still very much in love with him."

Centennial Star Nuisance Value

TWINKLE, TWINKLE: Earlier this week, we were looking for a good home for a model of the Peace Arch. Now Nanaimo has a problem trying to find a new home for its massive illuminated centennial symbol.

Remember that thing we saw all last year that looked like the Star of David standing on one leg?

The Nanaimo star is atop an apartment building, and the word is that the owners of the building want the star removed.

It is going to cost $1,000 to take the thing down, and there isn't even a centennial committee left to raise the cash.

It has been suggested the star go on top of the city hall, the Malaspina Hotel or the post office.

The mayor should be able to sort out the problem. Where there's a will there's a way.

BEST BUY: Anyone who says there are no dining-out bargains in this area should go to Esquimalt. The Halfway House offers a hot roast beef sandwich for 25 cents. That's it—no typographical error—just 25 cents.

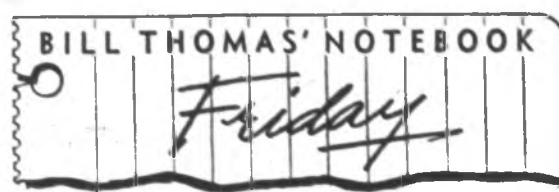

They go down very well with B.C. cider, especially the medium dry.

BITTER PILL: This city is trying to build live theatre, and indirectly the Council is trying to destroy it.

Last year the Charlottetown Festival had people out here and they auditioned and took away some of our best people.

Now Neptune Theatre's artistic director, Heinar Pillar, is on his way here from Halifax. He says, "We want to provide our audience with the very best talent available in Canada today."

Not one of the local groups gets consistent aid from the Canada Council, but Neptune and the others can come out here and offer good salaries to our local talent because of the backing they get from the federal money bag. It's just not a square deal.

SING OUT: The Red Lion is featuring house singer Brian Anderson this week along with a local trio, the Van Isles. They make most pleasant listening.

Mr. Anderson is building his repertoire and with a few more numbers on his charts he should be ready to branch out. He is pleasant voiced and has a good presence.

The Van Isles need to work on their continuity. Their vocal material is good, their harmonies are interesting, but they need more polish between numbers.

SAD EVENT: One of the city's best known pianists and teachers, Stanley Shale, died Tuesday in London. He was a respected examiner and had been connected with the Victoria Conservatory of Music since its inception. Robin Wood, director of the conservatory, offers this appreciation.

"Stanley Shale was the kindest and gentlest of men. His death in London is a sad blow to the many people of all ages who valued his friendship and had much affection for him. He was an unassuming musician but those of us who were privileged to hear him play the piano, usually in private before a few friends, were given an unforgettable experience.

"He loved music and had the gift of inspiring a love of music in his pupils. Many of these were brilliant and did notable things in the musical profession, but all who had contact with him had their lives enriched by his musical influence and his generous spirit.

"He was a great teacher and during some 40 years in Victoria he has left us a priceless legacy."

BEST FORWARD: Across the pond in Vancouver, Mr. Shaw Biz, Hugh Pickert, is hobnobbing about with a broken foot. He is expected over here with his cast of one soon to announce plans for some touring shows.

It would give the city's chances of getting some good things a boost if we had a good hall. Where can John Gary, Ray Charles or Buffy St. Marie play in this city? Don't say Memorial Arena, please!

DEATH WISH: Record companies go too far sometimes. Take the Mozart music for the film Elvira Madigan. The ultimate capability of Mozart for melody was exploited when the producer used the andante of the piano concerto 21 for his theme music. It caught on, so now the Boston Pops is having a go at it, and Ed Ames is singing a version titled Elvira. They all give credit for his melody but would he be happy with the result? Our man in records Jack Patrick still says the Geza Anda version is the best. It is.

Former Rival Weeps for Johnson

beer before leaving for a dinner with Hydro-Quebec officials. Laughing, he told workers he had no plans to develop a "Johnsonmania" to match the famed Trudeauania of that other French-Canadian leader—the prime minister.

DEAD IN BED
His staff found him dead in bed when they went to call him between 6 a.m. and 7 a.m. Thursday.

The body of the premier arrived at Quebec City aboard a provincial government aircraft Thursday afternoon.

The coffin was draped with the blue and white fleur-de-lis flag of Quebec.

Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who lost out to Mr. Johnson in the Union Nationale's leadership convention in 1961 and was acting premier in the July-August period, wept openly in meeting reporters.

A BROTHER
"He was a political brother I worked with for 20 years," said Bertrand.

The Union Nationale was formed by and reached its greatest power under the late authoritarian premier Maurice Duplessis but was swept from power early in Quebec's Quiet Revolution.

Johnson was credited with an astounding political feat in reshoring the fortunes of the party and driving it to electoral victory in 1966. He defeated the Liberals under Jean Lesage who won power in 1960 and were re-elected overwhelmingly in 1962.

FELT WELL
"I feel dangerously well," Johnson grinned Wednesday when he met reporters.

He looked tanned and fit, though thinner than before his heart attack. He had given up smoking—previously he had smoked up to three packs a day—and was following doctor's instructions to get at least six or seven hours sleep a night, compared with his previous three or four.

He returned to his duties at a time when several problems—including a dispute about the future of English teaching in some Quebec schools—were at crisis proportions.

NEVER RATTLED
But Johnson, son of an Irish-Canadian father and French-Canadian mother, never seemed rattled and prided himself on his understanding of the differing racial elements of his province.

The 20th Quebec premier, he was probably known better through English Canada than any of his predecessors, thanks to his television appearances at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto and the subsequent federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

HEAVY LOAD
Even before Johnson's sudden death, demands were growing for a lightening of the burden of the premier. Paul Sauve, 52, who succeeded Duplessis in 1969, died of a heart attack within four months of taking office.

The Union Nationale leadership was held successively for brief periods by three other ministers: Yves Provost, Antonio Barrette and Antonio Talbot, until the party convention of 1961. By then the Liberals were in power.

When the leadership convention was called, few gave Johnson much of a chance because of his Anglo-sounding name in a province where the voters are predominantly French. But his strong campaign overcame what some considered a handicap.

Born in Danville, Que., Johnson had a thoroughly

French-Canadian education and upbringing and his student years were spent in active participation in Roman Catholic youth groups with a strong nationalist flavor.

One of a family of 10 children—eight survivors—the young Johnson managed to pull through his classical college studies because of the generosity of a parish priest and a political friend of the family.

For a time he aspired to the priesthood but switched to law, graduating from University of Montreal in 1942. He was first elected to the legislature at 31.

GENERAL BAILLOT
His dumbfounding defeat of Jean Lesage, "politicien de grandeur" of the Quiet Revolution, in the general election of June 5, 1966, ended six years of Liberal rule when the Union Nationale seemed demoralized.

Johnson had started his climb to a place in Canadian history as soon as he secured his Montreal law office. He took an active part in political organizing and became a Union Nationale supporter though the party, formed in 1935 of dissident Conservatives and Liberals, was in opposition at the time.

When the party first took power in 1944, Johnson began a campaign in Bagotville to get the nomination for the next provincial election and he surprised Duplessis with his skill by winning a byelection in the constituency in 1946.

In 1954, Duplessis made known his admiration by appointing the young politician as his personal assistant—though the position was somewhat strange in that Duplessis seldom accepted assistance from anyone.

Johnson became deputy speaker in 1956 and in 1958 was brought into the cabinet as minister of hydraulic resources. But the Duplessis era was drawing to an end—and, in fact, the whole face of Quebec was about to change.

In the struggle for the leadership, Johnson travelled 50,000 miles around the province. "The era of the despot is gone," he told a 1961 news conference, but he was still regarded as the adherent of a party responsible for corrupt administration.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK
Lesage's defeat of Johnson in a snap election in 1962 seemed to confirm the Union Nationale's gloomy outlook but the party reorganized by Johnson and infused notably by youth and women in the constituency's executives, managed to bounce back to power in a minority vote in 1966.

Johnson's win seemed less than clear-cut to some but never at a loss for a humorous turn of phrase in French or English, he replied to a question about when he would take over: "As soon as the other guy leaves."

His government slowed down the hectic pace of change for which the Liberals had been criticized in the election campaign. Johnson then set out to win more constitutional autonomy for Quebec, greater recognition of the French language and closer relations with France.

Egalite ou Independance—Equality or Independence—was the book in which Johnson set out his views of Canada as an alliance between two equal and fraternal nations.

His open-ended approach caused some critics to say he wanted young people to feel they entertained separatist leanings. He was disappointed even by painful opponents, who said Johnson was a "thorough-diane could also have that and astute politician, get a separatist."

Married since 1941 to Reine Gagne, daughter of a Conservative lawyer, Johnson had homes at St. Pie de Bagot, 56 miles from Montreal, and in Montreal, two in Quebec and one at St. Pie.

JOLTING JOLTS
Johnson had a way of making jolting statements in an unsensational way and he seemed to cultivate an air of calm amid hectic events.

In an interview on the eve of the Ottawa conference in February, he told a reporter he could lead Quebec out of Confederation if he so wished—and were he so inclined—there would be no better time to do it than the present.

UNIQUE CHANCE
He maintained, however, that Canada has a "unique and historic chance" to make a profound contribution to the world on the basis of two nations. Speaking—as he did Wednesday on plans for Quebec participation in a French communications satellite, he said:

Coffee, Tea Restriction Helps Ulcers

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: We have all heard that coffee contains caffeine and too much is bad for the nerves. Because of my onetime ulcer, my doctor specified that I should eliminate coffee, and drink milk and tea. I hear that tea contains tannic acid which is not too good for you; also, that tea contains more caffeine than coffee. Is that another way of saying tea has tannic acid, or are both present in tea? Is tea just as bad for you as coffee?—I.B.

I don't like saying that either is "bad for you." Rather, it is a matter of individual tolerance. Too much of either—meaning too much caffeine—can produce symptoms (largely nervousness, jitters, etc.) in anyone. But the amount that is "too much" varies enormously from one person to another.

A strong cup of tea can contain more caffeine than a weak cup of coffee, and vice versa. Roughly speaking, a strong cup of coffee brewed from a tablespoonful of coffee grounds will have about the same caffeine content as a cup of strong tea brewed from a teaspoonful of dried tea leaves.

But, as a general thing, most of us tend to brew coffee stronger and we usually do not brew tea as long because of the bitter taste that can develop. In short, once for ounce, tea leaves contain more caffeine than coffee, but the usual methods of brewing generally mean that tea is weaker than coffee in the final liquid we drink.

The puckery taste from over-brewed tea is from tannin (or tannic acid) which is extracted by long brewing. This is quite apart from caffeine.

For most folks, there's nothing wrong with having a properly-brewed cup of coffee or tea. It perks you up. Too much can make you jittery.

As to controlling ulcers, it is my policy always to restrict both coffee and tea, because the caffeine can stimulate acid production in the stomach, which is what we want to avoid.

A weak cup of tea or coffee, if you can stand it, probably would do no harm, but I find that while most patients do not like weak coffee they often find very weak tea tasty enough. That's probably the reason for your doctor's advice, barring coffee but not tea.

The final answer, however, depends on how you are affected, and there can be, as I said, wide differences. Some folks take a cup of coffee at bedtime and still sleep calmly. Others, with the same amount of coffee, will be stimulated to insomnia, palpitation, and nervousness.

Soviets Censured for Invasion

Bundestag Alarmed

BOON (UPI) — The West German Parliament Thursday unanimously condemned the Soviet military intervention in Czechoslovakia. Parliamentary leaders urged France to reassess its policy toward Eastern Europe and warned against any weakening of the Western alliance.

The opposition Free Democratic Party joined with the governing Christian and Social Democrats in censuring the Soviets in a Bundestag (lower House) debate on the major foreign policy statement made Wednesday by Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger.

The tiny opposition party bloc voted against a 15-point resolution put forward by the government parties, however, because they objected to a clause reaffirming Bonn's claim to speak for the populations of both Germany.

Otherwise party chairman Walter Scheel said his party endorsed Kiesinger's speech, which confirmed Bonn's intention of continuing to seek an understanding with European communist nations while simultaneously condemning the Soviet action in Czechoslovakia.

Provocation to all. The sharpest attack on the Soviets was made by the far-left leader of the majority Christian Democrats, Rainer Barzel, who said the invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia was a "provocation to all Europeans, who do not wish to be pitted against one another."

Barzel also called it an "act of forceful violation of international law."

Barzel appealed to France to "draw the consequences" from the change of status in Europe caused by the Soviet intervention. Observers said it was an obvious invitation to President Charles de Gaulle to reappraise his go-it-alone policy regarding French relations with the communist bloc in pursuit of his dream of a united Europe.

Stiff Rules Made

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union Thursday spelled out just how far Communist countries may go in pursuit of freedom — and re-emphasized the right of "the Socialist camp as a whole" to intervene if an ally goes astray.

An article in the Communist party newspaper Pravda by S. Kovalev listed these restrictions, which he said applied to all Communist countries.

- A Communist country is free to determine its own path but it is not free to depart from communism.
- A Communist country has the right to self-determination, unless actions taken under that right jeopardize the interests of other Communist countries.
- Every communist party is responsible to the other Communist countries, in addition to being responsible to its own people.
- Communist countries are sovereign, but their sovereignty must be regarded as a class basis. It is not "abstract sovereignty."

Survey Rough

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — A British survey expedition has survived an attack by bandits and the death of a member to navigate the first 500 miles of the Blue Nile in Northern Ethiopia for the first time. The expedition was expected to return to Addis Ababa Oct. 2.

A Canadian Patriot

THE PEOPLE OF QUEBEC have lost a champion dedicated to the defence of their cultural rights and Canada has lost a patriot and a defender of the confederation with the death of Premier Daniel Johnson. It can be said that the leader of the Union Nationale Party gave his life to his country, for he must have been aware, following a heart attack in July, that his health had been seriously impaired by the tremendous pace at which he drove himself.

Yet, immediately on his return from a Caribbean convalescence last week he plunged back into the turbulent political stream with all his old energy.

His words of Wednesday, carried in a national broadcast, demonstrated his firm belief in the value of unity among Canadians and his adherence to a policy supporting it. The problems of Confederation will be settled in Canada by Canadians, he said. And added: "If I believed that in our relations with France the French were trying to destroy our country I would consider it my duty not to continue relations with France."

He had flown to Manicouagan Wednesday after his broadcast interview for dedication ceremonies at a huge Hydro-Quebec power installation the next day. He had been jostled at one point by strike pickets, but he met workers in a tavern, drank beer with them, and then went on to a formal dinner.

It was his usual long and busy day—and his last. Former Conservative prime minister, Mr. John Diefenbaker, the probably speaker for most Canadians when he said of the late premier: "I always realized his devotion to his country and his province was clear and definite. He was a stabilizing influence against doctrines that would have divided the nation—the doctrines of separatism."

It will be the fervent hope across this country that Mr. Johnson's successor—whether it be his close rival for the party leadership, Mr. Jean-Jacques Bertrand or some other—will possess some of the qualities of his predecessor and in particular his staunch moderation.

Quest for Peace

AT LONG LAST has come a response from the Soviet Union on the Middle East's explosive problems, the subject of debate and concern in world capitals and one of the United Nations' most urgent preoccupations.

The Russians are reported to have laid a four-point peace plan before Washington, presumably with the object of gaining American support, or possibly complementary proposals, before taking it to the United Nations.

It is a realistic approach, much along the lines of action proposed by Great Britain, among others, and United Nations officials. It should find favor.

Its framework includes withdrawal of Israel behind the frontiers which existed before the June war of 1967, a strong United Nations presence to guarantee the peace, a four-power declaration—by the United States, Britain, France and Russia—that further hostilities will not be tolerated, and an end of the Arab states' belligerence towards Israel.

These are certainly four essentials to any settlement. It is difficult to find any valid reason for their rejection in Washington. And, on the basis of statements by leaders in both Cairo and Tel Aviv on earlier occasions, there seems no ground for refusal for such an effort at compromise.

There remains the problem of the control of arms supply to both sides. President Lyndon Johnson urged a year ago the limitation of shipments to slow the pace of the arms race. And he has held up delivery of aircraft which the Israelis maintained were essential to their defence.

The Soviet message to Washington is reported to have made reference to this particular point although Moscow's position is not spelled out.

However, the formula as proposed offers a platform for debate on a master plan, and suggests that Russia is now willing to get down to earnest consideration of terms for settlement. It may be too early for any signs of relief; but it certainly is not too late to find a satisfactory solution to a stalemate which has worried the world for years.

One Instead of Two

THE PROPOSED merging of the Capital Region Planning Board into the Capital Regional District Board should find no objection. A purpose of creating British Columbia's regional districts as a new governmental level was to reduce the number of boards administering services shared among groups of municipalities and in some cases, unorganized territories.

In this instance, the planning board's functions would be taken over by the district board without change, except that the area served by the planning board would be enlarged to fit the district board's boundaries. The biggest difference would be that the region would have, directing the work of the planners, the same set of municipal and territorial representatives as it has in charge of its sewerage and hospital programs, with other joint services probably still to be added.

The plan is that if any one of the municipalities represented on the district board declines to accept regional planning as a function of the board, the merger will be defeated, and the planning board will continue in operation as it is. But it is difficult to see why any should decline.

The planners are concerned with the best development of the whole community. But they are powerless to direct that in a municipality, zoning shall be thus and so. There is nothing of local autonomy to be lost. But there is the efficiency of one board instead of two to be gained.

Hansard Titbits

Why the Secrecy?

HON. MR. O'LEARY (Carleton): ... I noticed that my friend the Leader of the Government devoted very little time to the Speech from the Throne. I can understand this. I remember that during the course of the summer the Prime Minister admonished his colleagues very sternly, saying, "You must not leak out what is going on in the cabinet." Now sir, when I read the Speech from the Throne I wondered why he should have admonished them so sternly, because nothing was going on in the cabinet.

"They needed a task force to discover THAT . . ."

The Unreality of Truncated Jordan

By JOE ALEX MORRIS, Jr., from Amman, Jordan

JORDAN was always something of an absurdity. Even its birth in 1921 was more of an accidental afterthought than anything else. In the wake of the last Arab-Israeli collision in June, 1967, the absurdity that was Jordan has become a political enemy. The West Bank, which produced 40 per cent of the national income and contained all of the country's Holy Land tourist attractions, is under enemy occupation. Into the desert wastes east of the Jordan River have flooded some 350,000 "new" refugees, besetting the country with political and economic burdens. Proportionately, the six-day war dealt Jordan a more crippling blow than Egypt. Nasser lost the vast but sparsely inhabited Sinai Desert, the Suez Canal revenues, and a great deal of prestige. For King Hussein, loss of the West Bank meant cutting the country's economic jugular vein and downing it to the status of a beggar state unless he gets the West Bank and Jerusalem back.

progress Jordan has been making in recent years that such statistics are available. It is all the more remarkable when one considers that before 1921, what is now Jordan was a barren backwater of the Ottoman Empire inhabited largely by nomadic Bedouins. The state came into being as a result of the breakup of the Ottoman Empire following the First World War. When Britain and France divided up the Arab east, Jordan became part of the short-lived Arab monarchy of King Faisal, who sat in Damascus. The French ousted Faisal, and Jordan was attached to the British mandate territory of Palestine. Then in 1930, Prince Abdullah emerged out of Hejaz bent on recovering his brother's lost kingdom. He got no farther than Jordan. Once there, his presence gave the British an opportunity they were looking for of establishing a government for Jordan.

There was no indication the British had planned it this way. It just happened. Jordan was a political afterthought. Once there, Jordan was almost forgotten for more than two decades. Abdullah scraped along on a modest British subsidy. Glubb Pasha ran his little empy. The came the Palestinian war in 1947-48. Glubb's Arab Legion occupied what was to become known as the West Bank, together with the other Arab armies, but was unable to prevent the establishment of the Zionist state of Israel.

The Palestine war marked Jordan's emergence from a sleepy backwater into a role of some strategic and political importance. It was also the real beginning of the absurdity phase in the country's short life. The newly expanded state began with some half a million refugees saddled upon it. It also started in curious contradiction: the West Bank was absorbed into the kingdom, a unilateral act not recognized by other Arab states which still viewed it as part of an Arab Palestine. The king's new Palestinian subjects looked down upon the less-advanced East Bankers, and it is only today under the pressing burdens of the postwar situation that this enmity is slowly evaporating.

Jordan has plenty of other problems too, not the least of which was that King Abdullah's son and successor, Talal, was a schizophrenic and unfit to rule. He was succeeded in 1953 by his 18-year-old son, Hussein.

Metric System

Time for a Switch?

By JOE BROOKS

IS it time to modernize the weights and measures system which originated from such standards as the length of a king's foot, the breadth of a thumb and the weight of a grain of wheat?

President Johnson has signed a bill which will seek to answer this question in the United States.

The legislation directs the commerce department to make a three-year study of whether the U.S. should abandon its system of inches, pounds and fractions for the metric system of metres, litres, kilograms and decagrams.

The present U.S. system is based on the British system, which is a combination of standards developed by Anglo-Saxons and the Roman conquerors of Britain.

A foot originally was the length of the ruler's foot. A yard was the length of an Anglo-Saxon girdle. A mile was 1,000 double-steps. An inch was the breadth of a thumb.

Proponents of the metric system argue that it is high time to abandon the present system in favor of one utilizing multiples of 10 and decimals in place of fractions.

They point out that Britain already is making a conversion from inches, pounds, stones, bushels, pecks, gallons and pints to the metric system. The target date is 1980.

Eighty-two nations are now using the metric system, and when Britain completes its conversion, 90 per cent of the world's population will be on metres and kilograms.

Only the United States, Canada, South Africa and Australia among major industrial powers will be on the older system.

Advocates of the metric system argue that standard international weights and measures are needed because of increasing trade and communications between nations.

They say the present variation hampers the interchange of machine parts and tools and makes it difficult for scientists to communicate.

Senator Claiborne Pell, one of the advocates, argues that it is a dollars and cents proposition for the United States. He says American products are losing world markets because they are designed to inch-yard standards. Pell foresees a "monolithic metric world" in which the United States will be shut out from markets and advances in technology.

Some U.S. businessmen believe conversion to the metric system is inevitable. They cite the easy decimalization, international acceptance and the importance of the system as a universal standard in scientific measurement.

Some concede they have lost foreign business because of the difficulty of converting from one system to the other.

Other businessmen are opposed to switching to the metric system, chiefly because it would cost them money.

One company estimated its cost at $30 million. They contend that the United States is the dominant industrial power and should set the trend rather than going along with it. (Copyright News Service)

Gen. William Howe's British forces occupied Philadelphia 191 years ago today — in 1777 — instead of advancing northward to join Gen. Burgoyne's army, forcing the northern army to surrender to American forces. However, the American army, deprived of Philadelphia, had to winter at Valley Forge, where hardships made a bid to remove Gen. Washington from command easier. Five months later, France promised help and the starving rebel army advanced. 1778 — John Adams was appointed by the United States to make a treaty with Britain.

First World War: Fifty years ago today — in 1918 — the Hindenburg defences were broken around Cambrai by British soldiers, who advanced to Beaumont and Graincourt; the 1st, 3rd and 4th Canadian divisions under Gen. Sir Arthur Currie forced a passage of the Canal du Nord, taking Sainnes-Marguin and Bourlon Wood. Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today — in 1943 — the British 8th Army occupied Foggia in Italy without firing a shot after the German forces had abandoned the city the night before. Washington Calling

President Johnson Looks for a Summit

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN the four months remaining in his presidency Lyndon Johnson is bent on a summit. While the initial goal was Moscow, and this is still not entirely ruled out, the consolation prize is Asian summitry, with 1968 as a precedent.

The plans are being readied for Bangkok some time after mid-October. Naturally no one will admit to this for a moment. Conceivably it could be broader in concept than merely the allies in the Vietnam war — a conference of Asian powers, including Japan, charting the Johnson legacy of economic rehabilitation over a wide area.

But whatever the locale it is a safe bet that the president will be out of the United States as the Nixon-Humphrey contest goes into the final embittered weeks. Johnson wants desperately to score in the last inning so that his record in foreign policy will be at least somewhat redeemed.

The Soviet take-over in Prague was for the president a personal disaster, since it thwarted his mission to Moscow. He had anticipated initiating the talks that would eventually lead to a slowdown in the nuclear arms race. That would have been a fitting climax to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty agreed to after so many long painstaking months of haggling and haggling at Geneva.

Seen, however, in larger perspective the personal consequences for one man's place in history are dwarfed to insignificance. Prague may have put a period to the last chance to stop short of the brink. It is like the U-2 spy plane incident which at the end of Dwight Eisenhower's presidency wrecked his high hopes for an easing of tensions and at least a pause in the seesaw of missile rivalry with the two nuclear giants confronting each other across the abyss of annihilation.

As was almost inevitable Prague has poisoned the political atmosphere in the United States. In his acceptance speech at Miami Beach, Richard Nixon called for negotiation with the Soviet Union. This was his alternative to the cold war. Now he says the nuclear treaty should be held up and this may mean its death. Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford reacted by calling for a go-ahead on the anti-ballistic missile on the theory that the United States in the missile talks must negotiate from a position of strength. This means another upward notch, since the military masters in Moscow will certainly insist on their own position of strength. In these waning months with his Gallup rating at an all-time low the handwriting on the wall is all too plain for Johnson. Every sign points to a disaster for his party. Understandably he does not want to be trapped in the ruins.

Two years ago he took the same reading and planned to be out of the country so that presumably the blame would not fall on him. He went on a grand tour of the Pacific, beginning with New Zealand and Australia. Everywhere huge crowds thronged the streets and for the most part they were friendly crowds.

The climax came with a seven-nation conference in Manila. The conference ended on Oct. 25 with a communique pledging that all foreign troops would be withdrawn from South Vietnam six months after North Vietnam stopped its aggression and infiltration and withdrew its forces. From Manila Johnson went on to Thailand, Malaysia and South Korea where he received the most tumultuous reception of the tour, with 2,000,000 people in the streets of Seoul.

A day or two before the tour ended Bill Moyers, then the president's press secretary and strong right arm, let it be known that on his return Johnson would start out on a furious campaign swing taking in more than 18 states. Urgent appeals had come from at least a half-dozen states, notably Illinois, California and Oregon, where the Democrats were in serious trouble. Reporters accompanying the president wrote that he meant to ride to the rescue of his beleaguered party.

The day after he got back to Washington he held a press conference and with considerable heat denied that he had ever intended to hit the campaign trail. It was all a fabrication of someone's imagination. In the face of this denial the intelligence was widely circulated in Chicago as to the route the president was to follow when he came on his mission of salvation.

How much he could have done at that late date to save veterans such as Sen. Paul Douglas was questionable. In any event, he did not campaign. The Republicans won 47 House seats, Douglas, Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown of California and other unfortunates went down to defeat.

In mid-October this year New Zealand's Premier Keith J. Holyoake comes to Washington on a state visit. According to present planning he will fly back with Johnson on Air Force One for a repeat of the Asian summit of two years ago. As always, of course, the president is holding the final decision down to the last minute of the last hour of the last day. What he could do for Vice-President Hubert Humphrey if he were to stay home is a bigger question mark than it was two years ago. Another hard-line conference could only add to Humphrey's troubles. Superjets for Israel

Option Kept Open

By ANTHONY HOWARD from Washington

A MINOR political storm has blown up in Washington over the question of whether the administration should consent to the sale of 50 supersonic jet fighters to the state of Israel. Both major candidates for November's presidential election, Mr. Richard Nixon and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, have come out in favor of making F-4 Phantom jets — the most advanced warplanes in the U.S. arsenal (apart from the problem-riddled F-111s) — available to the Israeli Air Force.

The president himself, however, is refusing to shift from what for more than a year has been the administration's official position of saying neither "yes" nor "no" to the Israeli government's request. Mr. Johnson's reasons for continuing to resist the mounting pressures upon him — from Jewish organizations as well as from electorally-minded members of his own Democratic Party — can only be a subject for conjecture.

But, perhaps significantly, White House sources are now openly hinting that the president's final ambition in the four months that remain to him of office is to wind up the unfinished business that he and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin left hanging at Glassboro 15 months ago. The Glassboro summit took place in the immediate aftermath of the Arab-Israeli six-day war — and was never intended to lead to a permanent Middle East settlement.

The crisis in the Middle East, therefore, now right at the top of the White House's summit agenda. Mr. Johnson is said to have abandoned any realistic hope of being able to bring the Vietnam war to a negotiated settlement before he leaves office. He has not, however, by any means given up on his long-dreamed-of project of having another meeting with Khrushchev leaders before he finally retires.

Within the White House there is now a reluctant acceptance that both Vietnam and Czechoslovakia would inevitably provide unprofitable topics of discussion at any such meeting: the Middle East, however, is regarded in an entirely different category — and the recent rapid deterioration in the situation there has been greeted with as much excitement as concern among Mr. Johnson's chief aides.

Some of these do not bother to conceal their feeling of optimism as Arab-Israeli relations go from bad to worse, the Kremlin will once again be forced to acknowledge that it does, indeed, share a common interest with the United States in maintaining peace in the area. This could conceivably lead — or so it is zealously hoped — to a Johnson-Kosygin meeting, probably to take place in neutral country.

Hence presumably Mr. Johnson's reluctance now to make any move that might appear to commit the U.S. irrevocably to the anti-Arab side of the dispute. Left to himself the president (as always) would certainly prefer to "keep all his options open." But even within the White House there are those who doubt whether the present administration line of withholding approval from any arms deal with Israel can be maintained indefinitely. No American public servant needs to be reminded that this is election year and that about two million Jews live in New York alone.

The main significance of the whole Israel jet sale issue currently, therefore, lies in the light it promises to shed on the president's own last ambitions. If he continues to refuse to give way to the increasing pressure for the United States to come to the aid of Israel's security, it will mean that he has not finally forsaken his quest for a summit meeting with the Russians. On the other hand the day — if it comes — when he gives in and withdraws his veto over the deal will certainly mark the moment that he loses all hope of seeing even his last dream come true. But Don't Expect Much Change

Caetano Is a Liberal Compared to Salazar

By PETER CLIFTON from Lisbon

Neither Portugal's well-wishers nor her political enemies can expect any dramatic change of course from Prof. Marcello Caetano, whom the Council of State has named as Prime Minister Antonio Salazar's successor.

In the days when Caetano was minister of the presidency, Salazar's heir apparent, he was said to be the hope of the liberals—liberals meaning the more liberal-minded members of Salazar's National Union, the only permitted political organization.

Before the 1961 elections to the National Assembly, Caetano was believed to have favored giving the non-Communist opposition 30 places on the National Union candidate list. His sponsorship of a relaxation of press censorship and plans for at least a token opposition are thought to have led to his dismissal.

He then became rector of Lisbon University, but resigned after his support for demonstrating students had made his position untenable. So much for Caetano's liberalism, which given the power could lead to some relaxation of the severe rule since the "bloodless revolution" of 1926. But nothing sensational can be expected.

Caetano, 62, is theoretically a monarchist. According to a senior member of the Portuguese royal family, "he's ambitious and intelligent. He wants 10 to 15 years in office as Salazar's successor and with Salazar's power. The Republicans don't like him, the church doesn't like him and the Freemasons don't like him. He's a monarchist who would be embarrassed by a monarchy."

A leading banker, also a monarchist, was less complimentary. "Caetano demands complete submission," he said. "He's a clear thinker but ruthless."

Against these misgivings, Caetano has the support of an important section of the army.

And in the final instance it is the army which will decide the political future of Portugal. Naturally he also has support in the council of state and the National Union, over which he once presided.

Any hope that Salazar's passing from the political scene (and even if he survives he will be unable to shoulder the burdens of premier again) might lead to a relaxation of the Portuguese control of Angola or Mozambique can be discounted.

Caetano, former minister for what were then called colonies and are now overseas provinces, has himself said, "The presence of Europe in Africa is indispensable because Africa isn't ready for autonomy."

Many influential Portuguese believe the Salazarist system will, perhaps with modifications, continue. They argue that democracy will not work south of the Pyrenees, but it is suggested that the next Portuguese government will no longer be a one-man band.

It is claimed that sooner or later the country will be run by some sort of junta on which army will be represented, possibly by Gen. Venancio Deslandes, a former governor-general of Angola who is now chief of staff of the Portuguese armed forces. Whether such an arrangement would be acceptable to the enigmatic Marcello Caetano remains to be seen.

Still Only Reading

Voice of the National News CBC's Personalized Image

He sits there, under that dramatic lighting that only the CBC would think of using on a newscast, and looks rugged and worried. And talks rugged and worried.

He's the voice of the National News, and it matters tions of news gathering and its presentation on TV. While the U.S. was developing its Huntleys and Brinkleys and CTV was developing Peter Jennings (who was later to be hired by ABC as an answer to Huntley and Brinkley), CBC news was being read by announcers.

But that spring, the CBC was bent on giving a brand-new look to its newscasts, and the key change was to be a new (to the CBC) breed of "broadcast journalist" who would be writer and/or editor of the newscast he delivered. Stanley Burke, with about 20 years of journalistic experience all over the world and a proven talent for on-air reporting, was to be the first.

And that's about as far as it got. Burke took the job, and the whole scheme immediately foundered on a union shield. CBC practice had established that newscasts were prepared by newsmen (represented by the American Newspaper Guild) and spoken by announcers (represented by the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada), and, by golly, that's the way it always had been and that's the way it was going to be.

It was a mess for Burke. He was a newsmen, he wasn't an announcer. But because of the union jurisdiction problem, he became an announcer and ceased to be a newsmen. This was embarrassing. Had it been his news program, as intended, no one would have laughed when he sat down at the microphone. But he had replaced one of the best announcers in the business, Earl Cameron, and he just wasn't in that league. Yet because the unions wouldn't let him write or edit, all he had to justify his existence was his dubious abilities as an announcer.

The situation was almost intolerable for him, and a dozen... a hundred... times he made ready to quit the whole thing and go back to being a foreign correspondent. And every time he received fresh assurances that the stalemate was only temporary.

So he stayed. And he's still receiving those assurances, and he's still believing them.

Somehow, though, it all doesn't seem to matter much any more. He once said of the job that he'd never been paid so well for doing so little. And since then, after seriously considering a CTV offer, he has negotiated a new contract with the CBC.

Burke has changed. Once a footloose globe-trotting bon vivant, he is now a domesticated bon vivant, and whether the job is the one he wants or not, it provides the means and the time for the good life.

Those who knew him of yore would be mildly surprised to find him at some of his current pursuits. He's a little surprised himself.

For one thing, he's become immersed in Good Works. Participation in a program on pollution got him involved more than professionally in the matter, but the CBC made him get out again, evidently deeming clean air too controversial an issue. However, with characteristic inconsistency, the corporation has permitted him to hold office in the United Nations association, with no qualms at all about the political implications.

What's really keeping Burke sitting around waiting for his job to become a reality, though, is that when he came back a couple of years ago and started looking at his own country, he decided he wanted to raise his family (four children, ranging from 9 to 16) here, and he'd just been handed the means to do it in style.

The job may still be a farce, staged by a corporation whose fair for the farce is widely known but, nowadays you have to listen closely to hear Stan Burke complaining.

Burke

— more than most people bother to think about — how he looks and talks.

There is no other on-air personality whose image is more important to the CBC, because, as the presenter of the 11 p.m. news every night, he is the personification of the entire news operation of the corporation.

He is Stanley Burke. He's 45, Vancouver-born, and would be a typical WASP if he didn't happen to be nominally Roman Catholic. He's a navy veteran, a newsmen since the war, and he became nationally famous in 1961 by holiering "Christ Almighty!" into what he mistakenly thought was a dead microphone.

In a few weeks, Burke will be beginning his third season of reading the news, and at this writing he was still waiting for the chance to do what he was hired to do. And he still believes he'll get it.

Burke was a foreign correspondent for the CBC in the spring of 1966, when he was approached to become the first of a new breed of CBC newsmen.

Unlike other networks, the CBC had separated the func-

'Cloistered Outlook'

Cable TV Slams Stations

MONTICLO (CP) — Cable television system operators asked the Canadian Radio-Television Commission Thursday to give them full scope to spread their systems across the country, bringing choice of viewing to Canadians limited now to one channel.

Lawyer W. Z. Estey, representing the National Community Antenna Association of Canada, said a public hearing of the CRTC that the cable systems are a logical answer to public demands for choice in viewing.

DEAF EAR — He urged the commission to turn a deaf ear to pleas of established stations that they could not withstand the competition that would come with alternate service.

There was no reason why a TV station should get any special protection from this kind of competition. Stations using the protection argument should not have a licence if they have "that cloistered outlook."

INSULT TO PUBLIC — It was an "insult to the Canadian public" to say that a holder of a broadcasting licence had a right to special protection from competition.

There was no obligation on the CRTC or anyone else to protect a TV operator from going bankrupt if he was unable to withstand competition. Mr. Estey said cable systems can bring viewing choice to areas of the country that will be too small for years to support any other form of alternate service.

OUTSIDE CITIES — The CRTC is in its second day of hearing views from interested parties on how second Canadian TV service should be induced in areas of the country outside the lucrative major cities.

No broadcaster has ever argued that CATV systems, which use an antenna to pick signals from distant stations out of the air and send them to paying subscribers by wire, hurt a regular station's revenue, Mr. Estey said.

This was because the CATV operator did not sell advertising time on his system.

LITTLE EFFECT — Some broadcasters maintain cable systems fragment their available audience, but Mr. Estey said in most cases where cable has come on the scene it had about the same effect as a sneeze in a hurricane for the regular broadcaster.

Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., operating Nova Scotia's telephone system, used some similar arguments in seeking permission from the CRTC to set up a CATV system that would cover the province. A. James Unsworth, company secretary, said cable systems are a form of alternative service despite the fact that a fee is charged to the user for linking up with the system.

MANY YEARS — Cable systems made particular sense in the many areas of Nova Scotia where slow economic and population growth meant that it would be many years before there would be enough commercial revenue available to support regular TV stations.

Extensive rural population and lack of some high-revenue, low-cost services available to telephone companies in more populous areas of Canada made life difficult for a communications company in the Maritimes, Mr. Unsworth said.

Mill Workers Sign Contract

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Electrical workers at northwestern Ontario and Manitoba paper mills signed a two-year contract to end a contract dispute which started Sept. 2.

The agreement, effective on Sept. 8, gives journeymen $4.17 an hour at the end of the two-year period compared to a rate of $3.53 under the old contract.

New Colors

QUEBEC (CP) — Members of the 2nd and 3rd battalions of the Royal 22nd Regiment became the first of Canada's armed forces to be granted new colors. Fashioned after the Canadian flag, the colors were presented to the two battalions at a reception at the Quebec Citadel presided over by Governor-General Roland Michener.

Key To Feminine Response in Marriage

Over the centuries, millions of women have been unjustly labeled — or thought themselves — "cold." New facts about a hidden muscular weakness that affects perhaps two-thirds of all women, plus a simple exercise, promise marital fulfillment to countless women who've never known it before. Death Fall Accidental

VANCOUVER (CP) — After being pushed by a man he was arguing with, a man stumbled and fell from a second-floor balcony to his death, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

William Schlossmacher, proprietor of a city restaurant, identified Peter Kachuba, 72, landlord at the Capital Rooms, as the man he saw shove Peter Burchell, 42.

The jury ruled the death of Burchell after the 16-foot fall from a rooming house balcony, was unnatural and accidental, caused by head injuries suffered when he landed on the sidewalk.

Foreign Ownership

Broadcasting Edict Ensures Protection

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised regulations to ensure greater Canadian control of radio and television stations, with foreign ownership limited to 20 per cent of voting shares and 50 per cent of investment, were announced today.

Formerly, foreign interests could own up to 25 per cent of voting stock and there was no limit on non-voting investment.

In addition, all chairman and directors of companies engaged in broadcasting must be Canadians. The old regulation lim-

Chrysler Reduces Price Increases

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. gave in to heavy government criticism and industry competition Thursday and cut back its 1969 model price increases.

Just 10 days after the firm unveiled price increases averaging $84 per car, Chrysler rolled out a new price schedule which reduced the average increase to $58 — just 1.8 per cent higher than its 1968 prices.

The rollback was forced by General Motors Corp., which announced price increases averaging $49 on Monday, and by Ford Motor Co., which on Wednesday followed with an average $47 increase.

Chrysler was also slapped by heavy criticism from President Johnson after it became the first of the industry giants to announce its new price schedule Sept. 16.

Chrysler said some of the prices announced last week were reduced to maintain a competitive position in each car line. Some prices of optional equipment also were revised.

MANICOUAGAIN, Que. (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson, victim of a fatal heart attack, left a reception Wednesday night with the words:

The statement, heard by Johnson's leave-taking

Bikes Unclaimed By Lazy Parents

By JACK MYERS

Many Victoria children are going without their bicycles because their parents are too unconcerned to check more than 90 unclaimed bicycles being held at the Victoria City Police garage, a police spokesman said Thursday.

"The bikes are here for many reasons. Most common cause is that children lose them when they run off, leaving their bike behind. Or someone uses it without permission and simply abandons it later," he said.

When the public is asked to come in and look through the abandoned bikes, only two or three persons usually show up, he added.

A bylaw change now allows police to auction off unclaimed bikes every three months. Auctions were previously every nine months.

Bikes bring from $5 to $25 at auction, depending upon condition.

Many now hanging from racks in the small storage pen at the garage, are fancy machines with lots of accessories.

Others are dilapidated wrecks with missing parts.

On the other side of the ledger, police have a book full of missing bike reports. Thursday it contained 118 bike descriptions reported missing since April.

Many of these could be removed, if owners would notify police when a bike has been located.

Police suggest bicycle owners can help them locate a missing bike by giving an accurate description and also the serial number.

Another suggestion is to paint the owner's name and address on the rear fender of the bike. Police say this keeps temptation from prompting others to "borrow" it.

Miss Spiller, charged in bank theft, walks past her house

Two Women Charged, Free on Bail

Auditors Burn Night Oil

PENTICTON (CP)—Auditors continued to pore over the books at the Royal Bank of Canada branch here Thursday following the discovery of a $492,000 shortage and the arrest of two women, one of them an employee at the bank.

Bank officials said the audit, which continued late into Wednesday night, will probably take four or five days.

Meanwhile, the two women, Kathleen Spiller, 26, the employee, and Frances (Bambi) Shubin, a bookkeeper, remained free on $10,000 bail each on a charge of theft over $50. Miss Spiller is also charged with falsifying bank records with intent to defraud.

The two were staying in their recently-renovated home at Naramata, a resort area about eight miles north of this Okanagan Valley city.

'LITTLE DECENCY'

When a newspaper photographer took a picture of a blonde-haired woman Wednesday, she put her hand up over her sunglasses and said "Let's have a little decency please."

The woman, later identified as Miss Spiller, then left in a car with a young man who had come to the house minutes earlier.

The flow of curiosity seekers past the smart-looking house with its neatly manicured lawns and shrubbery dwindled Thursday and the local residents were going about their business as usual.

However, bank guards remained on duty to prevent unwanted visitors or looters.

The two women will appear in magistrate's court here Tuesday.

Miss Spiller, described as a deeply religious woman, has been employed at the bank since she graduated from high school here five years ago. Fellow employees said she was a retiring woman who rarely attended bank social functions or engaged in "girl talk."

LOS ANGELES

Miss Shubin, employed by Oliver Industries Ltd., a local supply firm, came here six years ago from Vancouver where she had lived for four years. Before that, she lived in Los Angeles with her parents.

Fraser Floods Shored

Work has started on a joint provincial-federal 10-year flood control program for the Lower Fraser River system. It was announced Wednesday.

The announcement was made simultaneously in Ottawa by Federal Resources Minister Joseph Greene and here by Ray Williston, provincial resources minister.

The project, signed in May, calls for repairs, reconstruction and improvements to existing sea and river dikes in the Lower Fraser, construction of new dikes, the pumping and ditching of protected areas and protection of river banks against erosion.

Under the $40,000,000 program, British Columbia will be responsible for construction, operation and maintenance of the flood control works, with the province and Ottawa each spending up to $18,000,000 on the projects.

Municipalities also will be required to pay an "equitable cost" for projects under the program which covers the Fraser, Okanagan, Vedder, Nikomel and Serpentine rivers.

J. W. MacNeill, acting assistant deputy minister in the federal resources department, has been appointed chairman of a joint committee on the program. The chairmanship will alternate each year between a federal and provincial representative.

UVic Student Saves Woman

A University of Victoria student was credited by police with saving the life of a 27-year-old woman who jumped into the icy waters beneath Point Elliot bridge Thursday.

Police said Greg Gow, 19, of Nanaimo, leaped from the bridge, and after a struggle in the water, pulled the woman to a log, where both were picked up by a tug from Victoria Tug & Barge.

The woman was reported in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said the woman and a companion were driving along Bay Street shortly before midnight, when she stopped at Bay and Pleasant, ran to the middle of the bridge and jumped.

Her companion said she flagged down the rescuer as he passed.

But we don't rest Nova's case on looks and ride alone. There's the rest it can give your left foot with low cost Torque-Drive transmission, which eliminates the clutch pedal and almost all shifting.

You just simply flick the lever from 1st to Hi, and that's it. No clutching ever.

What does this boon to stop-and-go driving cost? The price is low enough for you to be able to put your left foot in permanent retirement. And you can order it for any 6-cylinder model.

Building Rate Down But Not in Victoria

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The rate of building is sliding off throughout the major communities of British Columbia, but not in Victoria.

Housing statistics for August by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation show that Victoria's housing starts were 274 against 215 in August last year, an increase of 27.4 per cent.

In Vancouver, the August starts were down to 1,171 from 1,366 a year ago. Kamloops, Kelowna, Nanaimo, Penticton, Port Alberni, and Vernon were other areas in which the August figure was well below the level of a year ago.

For the province, the August decline was 16.7 per cent, leaving the eight month total for the province now only 15.6 per cent ahead of a year ago.

RILEY IS A GO-GO

This week's newcomer to the list of "go-go" stocks is Riley Data, a western Canadian company which has computerized a library of oil and gas drilling results.

The shares, offered primarily at $5 each, started trading over the counter at $14.55.

JOREX MAKES BOW

Jorex Ltd., the new Canadian mining exploration company, which failed to get its shares "blue-chipped" in British Columbia recently, because it had no physical assets, is a new listing on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The primary distribution was made at $1.00 and the shares closed Thursday at $1.55.

Although it has nothing but money, Jorex has commanded some investment interest because it is backed by four established mining companies which own one-twelfth of the outstanding 1,300,000 shares.

Each owning 100,000 shares of Jorex with the promise to take another 100,000 each if called upon to do so in the next two years, are McIntyre Porcupine, Curwest Exploration, Brimet Securities (British Metals), and Rayrock Mines.

When first traded Wednesday Jorex rose to $1.80. Its Thursday low was $1.40.

NO CALL TO CHANGE

Although so far there are probably few common shares of Canadian Pacific Investments in the hands of the public, a market has been announced this week for the first time.

An eastern brokerage house is quoting them at 13 1/2 to 14 1/2.

CPI common are acquired by converting the existing Canadian Pacific preferred shares on the basis of two common to each preferred, or by exercising CPI warrants plus $12 cash.

As CPI preferred are traded at about $27 and the warrants about $5 there seems little inducement for investors to make the switch at the current level.

AS PREDICTED

Distillers Corporation-Searns, for whom higher earnings were anticipated, ended the July 31 fiscal year with a net profit of $50,625,000 ($2.89) against $47,117,000 ($2.69) in the previous year.

Sales rose to $1,255,352,000 from $1,164,626,000. All figures are expressed in U.S. dollars.

DEPRESSED ECONOMIST

The main thing that is keeping Canada from an economic slump, according to an economist of an internationally-renowned chemical company, is the high volume of exports going to the U.S.

Ronald B. MacPherson, of Du Pont of Canada, says this is shaky ground because only the Vietnam war is creating the U.S. demand for Canadian goods and services, and the situation could change quickly.

Claiming that the annual increase in Canadian productivity is only 1 1/2 per cent, and industrial growth only between three and five per cent, MacPherson says we may be on the brink of serious economic problems.

Tighter tariffs and exchange controls, a balanced budget, higher capital investment and moderation of wage and price increases are the solution to Canada's difficulties, he said.

The Canadian government was ignoring the facts and since 1965 it had let things get out of hand.

OUTPUT INCREASED

Canadian Park and Tilford North Vancouver distillery firm will increase its production by 25 per cent immediately to meet the market demand for distilled products.

A $250,000 warehouse expansion program has begun to meet the handling of the increased output.

BANKRUPTCY DECLARED

The Montreal investment firm of Corporation Foncier de Montreal, headed by Marc Bienvenu, has been declared bankrupt following its failure to meet commitments.

Bienvenu was at one time in control of the Bank of Western Canada and other financial institutions.

GROBAY SELLS SHARES

Grobay Sawmills of Vancouver has agreed to sell its holding of 97,400 shares of Watrous-GM Diesel of Edmonton to Wajux at $16 a share.

The acquisition will give Wajux 49.4 per cent of the outstanding Watrous-GM stock, and it intends to make an offer for the remaining shares held by individuals.

THREE BANKS CUT RATES

NEW YORK (AP) — At least three major New York City banks announced Wednesday they were lowering their prime interest rate to commercial borrowers to 6 1/4 per cent, 1/4 per cent less than the reduction announced Tuesday by Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

The 1/4-per-cent reduction was announced in rapid succession by First National City Bank, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., and Bankers Trust Co.

Mini-sub begins dive in midst of Arctic ice.

Arctic Bottom Never Silent

By DON COLLINS

Canada, through a research team headed by Victoria scientist A. R. Milne, may have found the key that will unlock the forbidding Arctic Ocean to future underwater navigation.

The team has returned from six weeks in the Arctic with what it believes to be the first comprehensive data about the wide range of sound levels beneath the mountainous icebergs.

Other firsts it claims include: Man's initial journey by mini-submarine into the ocean's eerie depths for a first-hand view of the bottom.

Successful use of complicated remote instrument packages that sat on the ocean floor for a year recording the noise level every hour.

The scientists say information gathered this way will be necessary if the world is to see the day when cargo submarines move freely beneath the Arctic icecap.

"Where Canada is concerned," Mr. Milne said at a press conference Thursday, "I am sure that day will come when submarine tankers will be the way of moving oil."

The reference was to oil exploration now going on in the Arctic.

The press conference was held at Defence Research Establishment Pacific in HMC Dockyard, which designed and built the instrument packages planned the expedition. The mission was actually administered by the Arctic Institute of North America.

"I don't think many people realize that some of the finest brains anywhere are to be found right here in the naval lab," Mr. Milne said in tribute to those who designed and built the noise-recording instrument packages.

Four of the five one-ton packages valued at $25,000 to $30,000 each, were recovered.

"We feel we were exceptionally lucky at that," said Mr. Milne. "When we set out, we felt we would be doing well if we retrieved three of them."

The packages were placed in and near Barrow Strait and Beaufort Sea the year before. One was crushed by a 50,000-ton iceberg.

Operating somewhat like space satellites, the instruments recorded as many as 1,000,000 variations in noise levels.

This puts an end to a long-time belief that the ocean beneath the icecap is a place of almost complete silence.

Weather conditions, preliminary examinations show, have much to do with the noise level. Mr. Milne said the most noise occurred during the cold periods, when the ice would crack. Warmer weather brought relative quiet.

It was also possible to tell through this equipment when a storm was approaching, Mr. Milne said.

The feeling now is that scientists will be in the position to predict noise levels under various weather conditions and dictate the type of sonar equipment that would be necessary for underwater vessels.

The two-man submarine Pisces I (it can carry three, if some equipment is left behind) was carried into the Arctic Ocean aboard the Coast Guard icebreaker Labrador. It made about 20 dives, the deepest in excess of 1,500 feet.

The passenger compartment was manufactured by Victoria Machinery Dept., while the rest of the tadpole-shaped submarine was assembled by its owners, International Hydrodynamics of Vancouver.

The instrument packages were recovered by reacting to a coded message from the icebreaker. The message triggered release of a bolt on the package, which in turn released a float attached to a cable.

The packages released yellow and green dye so that they could be spotted more easily. In addition to recovering the instruments, the expedition made what study it could of mammals and oceanography.

Until this trip, Dr. Bernard Pelletier of the Bedford Institute of Oceanography at Dartmouth, N.S., had been "playing a game of blind man's bluff."

Without ever having seen the ocean floor as it actually is, he had used sounding devices to write papers about its formation.

Fellow scientists said Dr. Pelletier, after his first trip down in the mini-sub, made a "great scientific pronouncement."

They said his first words were: "Look at all these rocks."

Also with the expedition was oceanographer Richard Herlinveaux of Nanaimo, who was doing research for the Fisheries Research Board. He will use one of the same equipment packages soon in the Strait of Georgia south of Comox to determine the effect on fish movement of currents and light intensity.

Later, he hopes to carry on such examination extensively throughout the B.C. coastal area.

The sight of the mini-sub brought a screaming reaction from the whales that Mr. Herlinveaux said "made the hair stand up on the back of your neck."

The scientists agreed that the study of the Arctic Ocean seemed much like the study of space.

Longer. Wider.
More car than you've ever seen before at a Ford price.

Did you mistake it for one of Canada's most expensive cars? Lots of people are doing that. And with good reason. The 1969 Ford hugs the road with as wide a track as a Cadillac. The 1969 Ford has more front head-room and legroom than an Imperial. The 1969 Ford LTD has a ride designed to be quieter than the LTD that was quieter than a Rolls-Royce. The 1969 Ford smooths your ride with a longer wheelbase than a Chevrolet. Yet, even with this longer wheelbase, the 1969 Ford is easy to handle, easy to park... it turns in an even smaller circle than last year's Ford. This is a new luxury-size Ford at a very popular Ford price. Big. Strong. Quiet. A great road car.

Torino— the hottest new car of 1968 comes back even
in 1969!

Torino by Fairlane. How can anything so hot look so cool. It set sales and performance records in '68. And it's ready to break them all over again in '69. With a new high-powered 428 Cobra Jet engine. A track grabbing, extra-long wheelbase. And a quick-action size. Inside Torino is cool. Cool luxury. Soft interior. And a list of options second to none. Go with the Torino/Fairlane line this year. It's 16 models strong. With hardtops, convertibles, sportsroofs, and wagons. And it includes the brand new all-out performance machine, Cobra. Get with it. Torino/Fairlane is ready to go with you.

Mustang—Somebody finally built a better
Mustang. We did.
Five of them.

1969 Mustang Mach I

The original Mustang was the most successful new car in history. For 4 years, nobody's been able to beat it. Until now.
The 1969 Mustang is all new.
Longer. Wider. Roomier than ever.
With five classic models: Hardtop, convertible, sportsroof, new super-cool
Mustang Grandé, and super-hot Mustang Mach I. But one thing hasn't changed. The 1969 Mustang is still designed to be designed by you! This year, go young again with Mustang 1969—the most exciting new car since the original Mustang.

Falcon—the economy car that gives you more than just economy.

1969 Falcon Sports Coupe

We think an economy car should give you lots more than just economy. That's why we designed Falcon to give you roomy comfort. Plush options. Lots of power choice and model choice, (including 2 wagons). And lots of economy too—in the price and at the gas pump.
That's how Falcon got to be so popular. And that's how we're going to keep it.

FORD IS THE GOING THING IN 1969 BECAUSE FORD GIVES YOU BETTER IDEAS. There's been a growing trend to Ford over recent years because people like Ford's better ideas. This year is no exception. You'll find a unique three-way tailgate on Ford wagons. It opens down for cargo, and out for passengers with the window open or closed. And a new idea in front seats on big Fords. We call it the front room . . . a coved instrument panel with all controls right in front of the driver . . . and nothing but roomy comfort for passengers. You also get special Cobra-Jet engine packages on Mustang and Torino. And lots more. See all 52 models—the largest selection in Ford history. So come on down to your nearest Ford Dealer

Pete Rose Slows Down to Jog... in His Sleep

By JIM MURRAY

There are lots of ballplayers in the game who can go down to first in 3.5 seconds. But only one, Peter Edward Rose, Jr., does it on bases-in-balls.

For a hit-by-pitcher, he takes a little longer. He is tied with teammate Vada Pinson for the world's fastest home runs — 16 seconds from crack-of-the-bat to handshake at home plate. Inside-the-park homers are only a step faster.

EVEN EATS FAST

Pete Rose even eats fast. He protests that he takes his time because "eating fast gives you ulcers" but a teammate insists he holds the listed world record for hot fudge sundaes. He put one away, cherry and all, in four seconds one night. A steak disappears so fast, a waiter can give it to him and take it away in the same motion.

Pete moves through life in such a blur there are only a handful of third basemen who know what he looks like and there are some fans who aren't sure what his number is. Rumor has it, he sleeps standing up, gets dressed as if the hotel were on fire and uses the hotel elevator only if his room is on the 20th floor or above.

The Cincinnati Reds call him "Rabbit." The manager calls him "Hippity, Dippity Dime" and the Reds' big fear is, he will score so fast some night, no one will see it.

"Part of it was self defence," a teammate explained. "When the third out was made and you heard the sound of running feet behind you, you had better get out of there or Pete would go up one side of you and down the other. He even runs to the shower."

He has played every position on the diamond except pitcher. Pete refused to take up pitching because, "I could never stand to play only every fourth day." A football half-back good enough to get scholarship offers, he passed up football for the same reason, "too much standing around."

BACK-TO-BACK TO BACK

He has hit over .300 four years in a row counting this season, is one of only three active players to have recorded back-to-back, 200-hit seasons. His 4203 hits this

More Times at Bat Give Edge to Rose

Pete Rose is gaining on Maltby Alou in the complicated "number game" which can decide the National League batting championship.

Something like $25,000 might be at stake for either batsman depending upon the outcome of the tight race—and both obviously are pressing. Each went 0-for-4 Wednesday night when Rose's Cincinnati Reds scored a 2-0 victory over Alou's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The frustrating night left Rose with a .3353 average and Alou with a .3313 mark as they come down to the closest finish of a batting race in the league since 1931. The factor in Rose's favor is that he has batted 63 more times than Alou and, therefore, loses fewer points when he fails to hit.

Rose lost .0021 points Wednesday night, for example, while Alou lost .0025 points.

season make it back-to-back-to-back.

I found this Rose in his garden the other night and conducted the first 20-mile-an-hour interview I have had since Mel Patton hung 'em up. It went like this:

BUGGED BY MATES

Prejudice, as such, is supposed to have been pretty well rooted out of baseball. Your color, your religion, your language are not supposed to matter to your teammates. But the one thing they will not tolerate is your hustle. Pete Rose got the word early when he got to the minor leagues. "Charlie Hustle," they sneered. "Hollywood!" "Hot Dog!" "Slow down, high school hero," they sneered. "The TV cameras are off now."

But, this Rose, by any other name, still LIKES to play baseball. He can't wait to get to the outfield, to the dugout, the plate, first base, home. His career has been orchestrated to the sound of snapping bases, impaled fingers, acrobatic catches. He dove for a Ron Fairly fly ball with two on last year, caught it by dislocating his shoulder and, nevertheless, tried to double up the runner off second.

THEY JOINED HIM

The prejudice died down when Pete led the league at Tampa in hits and triples one year and in runs and triples another. Then he led the National League in hits in 1965 and hit 105 doubles over three seasons. Instead of resenting him, the team joined him.

Alou: "Well, (puff, puff) Pete, what are your goals for (puff, puff) this season?"

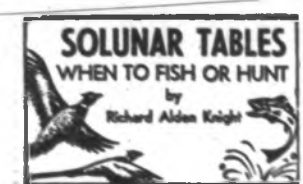

He: "Well, I would like first to (becoming inaudible as he raced out to the fence and returned) ... then, I would like to hit at least (trailing off in the distance as he got out of earshot) ... after that, I would like to get in the (becoming indistinct again) and then finally I would like (sound of running feet disappearing in the distance)

I gave up. I was turning blue. I saw the manager, Dave Bristol. "When's a good time to catch him under man one?" I asked him.

"Get him in his sleep," Dave said sympathetically. "He slows down to a jog."

McNabb Praises...

Victoria could well become the permanent training base for San Diego Gulls of the Western Hockey League.

"It's an ideal situation here," said Max McNabb, coach and general manager of the club. "Everything is of a professional stature and the location is excellent."

"The facilities at Memorial Arena are excellent with the good ice and full-size surface. We're also able to keep the boys just a block from the arena at the Imperial Inn — you can't beat that."

GOOD NUCLEUS
"We've kept a small camp as there is a good nucleus from last season's team, and we probably won't start cutting until after the exhibition schedule," he added.

The Gulls meet Portland Buckaroos at Memorial Arena on Saturday at 8:30 p.m., play Vancouver Sunday at Chilliwack and meet Phoenix Roadrunners here Tuesday, the last day of the camp.

AMONG HOLDOVERS

McNabb has 15 holdovers including goalkeeper Bob Champoux and defencemen Jack Evans, the assistant coach, and Dennis Huculak, the outstanding rookie last season, who was returned recently from the parent Detroit Red Wings for further seasoning.

Also returning at defence are veteran star Gord Sinclair, Jim Eagle, and Jim Wilcox.

Returning centres are Alex Faulkner, Ken Gustafson, Warren Hynes and Ed Pina-gallo along with rightwingers Ed Ehrenverth, John MacMillan, and Willie O'Ree.

AMONG NEWCOMERS

Two other players obtained by McNabb from the Detroit camp are Dave Richardson, a left wing-centre who played with New York Rangers and Fort Worth last season and defenceman Jim Cardilli, also from Fort Worth in the Central League.

The other goalkeepers are

Hull, Mikita Unsigned Howe Injures Knee

Two of the National Hockey League's top stars apparently are holding out for better contracts for the 1968-69 season.

Chicago Black Hawks are continuing negotiations with superstars Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, who are reported bargaining for $100,000 contracts.

Tommy Ivan, general manager of the Hawks and the man responsible for negotiating the team's contracts, admits to an impasse with the two stars.

"We're close in some areas of basic salary, but not so close in other areas," Ivan said in an interview.

Apart from Hull and Mikita, the only other unsigned player for Chicago is centre Pit Martin.

Probably the NHL's most defiant holdout is Ted Green, the Boston Bruin defenceman and Green, who quit training camp, has vowed to remain at his Winnipeg home until the Bruins renegotiate the second year of his two-year contract.

Other Bruins in contract dispute include Ed Westfall and Ed Shakk.

At the Oakland Seals camp in Oshawa, Ont., Bill Hicke and Ted Hampson are also holding out.

On the exhibition trail Thursday, Red Wings blanked the visiting Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-0, but the Detroit club may have lost veteran Gordie Howe with a knee injury.

The all-time scoring star twisted his left knee and missed the third period. It was not immediately known how serious the injury is.

Frank Mahovlich and Nick Libette scored for Detroit in the first period.

At Peterborough, St. Louis Blues of the NHL defeated Rochester Americans of the American League, 4-3, on goals by Camille Henry, Red Berenson, Terry Gray and Ab McDonald.

Dick Gamble, with two goals, and Bronco Horvath scored for the losers.

Paul C. Warren, director of the Atlanta and Philadelphia classics, the Florida Citrus, and the Jacksonville and Cleveland opens, said his five sponsors for the 1969 tournaments "have indicated their complete support and their desire and intention to contract with the newly-formed APG at such time that they might be permitted to do so."

Warren, vacationing at La Costa, south of Los Angeles, issued the statement through a Los Angeles spokesman.

"At the individual direction of each of my five sponsors, I am prepared to accept the dates offered my sponsors by the APG in 1969."

Chuvaleo Stops Ramos Mathis Belts Woody

NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvaleo, Canadian heavyweight champion, stopped Manuel Ramos of Mexico Thursday night and won his heavyweight bout with a technical knockout at 1:11 of the fifth round.

Referee Jack Clayton stopped the fight as Chuvaleo was pounding Ramos against the ropes. Chuvaleo had dropped Ramos with a left hook to the head after a flurry of punches to the body at about the one-minute mark of the round.

Chuvaleo weighed 205 1/2, about 10 pounds below his normal fighting weight. Ramos weighed 208.

SIXTH ROUND KO
It was the second of two heavy-weight main events at Madison Square Garden. In the first bout, Buster Mathis, the climaxed-down blimp from Grand Rapids, Mich., stopped James J. Woody of New York in 2:39 of the sixth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

For Chuvaleo, the fight was another step in a come-back since he was knocked out in the fourth round last year by Joe Frazier, recognized in five U.S. states as world heavyweight champion. Chuvaleo suffered a badly cut eye in that fight.

PRESSES RAMOS
Chuvaleo pressed his rangier opponent from the beginning and scored with rights and lefts to the body and left hooks to the head. As the fight progressed, Ramos started to hang on and Chuvaleo was scoring with right uppercuts in close.

In the third round Chuvaleo began to bleed slightly from a cut on the left side of his face.

In spite of this, he continued to pound Ramos to the body with combinations and to the head with uppercuts.

As the fourth round opened Ramos was throwing desperation left hooks and Chuvaleo was countering with combinations.

He nailed Ramos with another barrage to the body and a right uppercut. He closed out the round with a flurry to the body.

WOODY WAS AHEAD
Woody, shorter and lighter than Mathis, who was knocked out by heavyweight champ Joe Frazier in March, was ahead on two of the three official cards until the sudden ending.

Judge Artie Aldala had it 4-1 for Woody and judge Tony Castellano had it 3-1 for Woody at the end of the fifth. Referee Tony Perez had Mathis on top 3-2.

Neither fighter had done much damage in the early rounds and the fans were booing and whistling for action. Suddenly, in the sixth round, Mathis landed a solid right hand in an exchange and there was a mouse under Woody's right eye.

Mathis shook up Woody with a left hook and then swarmed all over him with both hands. He threw a right hand just as Woody went down.

Referee Perez took the count to nine, looked into Woody's eyes and stopped the fight with the loser on his feet.

Mathis, staring with the soulful eyes of a man who had been on a stiff diet, came into the ring at 223 pounds. He weighed over 300 in his amateur days and gained 243 1/2 on March 4 when Frazier stopped him in 11 rounds.

Dave McNally Wins No. 22

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave McNally won his 22nd game of the season Thursday night, pitching Baltimore Orioles to a 7-1 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

McNally, 22-10, helped his own cause with two hits, driving in one run and scoring twice. He has won 14 of 16 decisions since the All-Star game. He allowed six hits.

The loss shoved the Indians into fourth place in the American League, one-half game behind idle Boston. Cleveland has one game left to play while the Red Sox have three.

Cleveland — 100 runs, 111 hits, 68 errors. McNally (15-11), Gardner (4), Foster (4), Bailey (3) and Arcuri (2) pitched.

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — More than anything else, the outcome of the 1968 World Series is likely to depend on the confrontations between ace pitchers Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals and Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers.

The two are virtually certain to meet in the first game in St. Louis next Wednesday. They will probably clash again in the fourth game, scheduled for Detroit, Sunday, Oct. 6. And, if there is a seventh game, there is little doubt they will pitch against each other a third time.

CARDS HAVE EDGE
Statistically, through Monday's games, the Cards' staff has the edge over the Tigers'. St. Louis pitchers have compiled an over-all 2.44 earned-run average with 61 complete games and 29 shutouts. Detroit hurlers have combined for a 2.68 ERA, 59 complete games and 19 shutouts.

The Cards' advantage, though, seems to be more pronounced in the bullpen than among the starters. Lefty Joe Hoerner, 32, and right-hander Ron Willis, 23, give St. Louis a strong career.

The Cards' other relievers are Wayne Granger, 41, and Mel Nelson, 23. In addition, manager Red Schoendienst has Steve Carlton, 23-11, Larry Jaster, 9-13, and Dick Hughes, 2-2. Each was used mostly as a starter during the regular campaign, but is likely to see action only as a reliever in the series.

LACK EXPERIENCE
Except for Don McMahon, 3-1, and John Wyatt, 2-4, the Tigers' bullpen lacks experience. Pat Dobson, 5-4, and Fred Lasher, 5-1, are in their second year. Jon Warden, 4-1, and Daryl Patterson, 2-3, are rookies.

McMahon, John Hiber, of Scarborough, Ont., who is 9-6, and Joe Sparma, 10-10, will probably do most of the relieving. Sparma, who started in 30 of the 33 games in which he's appeared, is likely to be the long reliever.

PITCHER MATCHUPS
The starting pitcher matchups figure to go this way:
First game—McLain, 31-6, against Gibson, 21-3.
Second game—Mickey Lolich, Detroit, 15-8, against Nelson Briles, St. Louis, 18-11.
Third game—Earl Wilson, Detroit, 13-12, against Ray Westburn, St. Louis, 13-7.

None among the Tigers' probable starters has series experience. Gibson, who won three games against Boston Red Sox last October, has an over-all 5-1 mark. Briles is 1-0 while Westburn worked 2-3 innings last year with no decision.

There is a tendency to lean toward Gibson in his meetings with McLain because his fastball is more overpowering. The Tigers' star changes speeds more often.

Because McLain has worked more often than Gibson—43 games and 329 innings to 34 games and 235 2-3 innings—several of Denny's figures are more impressive from their won-lost records on down.

MORE COMPLETE GAMES
McLain has also more complete games, 28 to 26, and strikeouts, 276 to 257. Gibson leads in shutouts, 12 to 6; and earned-run average, 1.36 to 1.97. In addition, the husky Cards' ace has yielded only 11 homers while McLain has given up 31.

Negroes Drop Demand

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — Negro members of the United States Olympic track and field teams have dropped their demand that Avery Brundage resign as president of the International Olympic Committee, it was revealed Wednesday.

Hilmer Lodge, chairman of the U.S. Olympic track and field committee, said that Brundage, the controversial 81-year-old IOC head, had convinced the group that remarks he had made concerning a possible demonstration at the games in Mexico City next month had been misunderstood.

Brundage spoke with Stan Wright, a Negro who is assistant coach of the team, Lodge said, and they agreed that Brundage had been misquoted.

On Tuesday, 21 Negro members of the team signed a statement calling for Brundage's resignation, saying it "is long overdue and is a necessity before a progressive overhaul of the national and international sports situation can begin."

The statement evolved from a remark Brundage made at a news conference that anyone participating in a demonstration at Mexico City would be sent home.

Brundage told Wright his statement had no bearing on the U.S. track athletes specifically but referred to all athletes at the Games in all sports.

Government Employees

Militants Preparing Convention Strength

By DON COLLINS

Amid denials by the moderate element, there were more indications Thursday that the militants of the 11,000-member Government Employees' Association plan a show of strength at the association's Vancouver convention Oct. 4 and 5.

Norman Thornber of Victoria, the man most closely associated with the move to reshape the association, confirmed that he was ready to go after the top job.

He said he was drafting his application for the position of general secretary, advertised as a $15,000-a-year post.

RESIGNATION SUBMITTED

Edward O'Connor of North Vancouver, the present general secretary, submitted his resignation recently but agreed to remain on the job until a new man was made familiar with the role.

Leaders of a more moderate faction in Victoria said Mr. O'Connor had not tendered his resignation, but Mr. Thornber said Thursday:

"I was at the executive meeting that accepted his resignation with regret."

The long list of resolutions prepared for the convention includes some complaining about weak leadership and demanding the replacement of Mr. O'Connor.

CLAIM DISPUTED

Mr. Thornber took issue with a claim of Victoria branch president Alice Brady that any dissent seemed to be confined to the ferry workers.

He said many of the stronger resolutions came from highway workers and others not connected with the ferries.

Mr. Thornber is business agent for the marine branch, which was involved in the two-week ferry strike earlier this year. He said some other branches of the association had become more militant after "seeing what the ferry workers were able to achieve."

MARINE BRANCH

The marine branch, which makes up about 10 per cent of the association, is the only branch affiliated with the B.C.

Federation of Labor and local labor councils. The association as a whole is affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress. One of the decisions of the CLC convention at Toronto last May was that all affiliates should belong as well to their provincial labor federations.

A B.C. Federation of Labor official has been picked for the first time as the keynote speaker for the government employees' convention. He is Ray Haynes, the federation's secretary-treasurer.

CONFIDENCE VOTE

"As far as I'm concerned," Mr. Thornber said Thursday "the one point to be decided by this convention is whether or not the civil servants in this province have confidence in the present executive."

He said there was concern over the fact that more than half the civil servants in the province — 11,000 — had not joined the association.

Like some others, he said, he felt the top job should be open to election.

"The way things are, there has been too much authority placed in the hands of the executive and not enough in the hands of the membership."

He said he wanted to make one other point clear. "It is not our intention in any way to hurt the association. Since we are members of the association, we want to be instrumental in strengthening it."

Militant forces have said before that they want collective bargaining rights.

Farms, Oil—He Knows the Ropes

By RAY KERR

Farming, ranching, oil research, shipbuilding and chess may be more than enough for one man's lifetime.

Thomas Lokier, 255 Hamoka, is still shooting for more. Mr. Lokier will be celebrating his 100th birthday Wednesday.

Among those expected will be other Silver Threads members and officials as well as civic representatives from Victoria.

Mr. Lokier was born in Shropshire, England, Oct. 2, 1868. He was a year old at the time of Confederation but he found Canada attractive while a young man.

Around the turn of the century, he moved to Medicine Hat, Alta., taking about 100 cattle with him. In 10 years, in partnership with an Alberman, he had a ranch with 1,700 head of cattle.

While in Medicine Hat, Mr. Lokier became profitably involved in oil and gas.

In conjunction with Oak Bay Kwanan Club, he was instrumental in a petition being forwarded to Ottawa and Premier Bennett, seeking the establishment of a low-rate ferry link with the mainland.

he prefers having a game at home.

For the big century celebrations, his son William is coming from Newwater, Alta., and the Lokier clan will have open house on Thursday.

Motoring Offences 'Contemptuous Attitude'

Courtroom Parade

Reprimanded Thursday in Central Magistrate's Court for his "contemptuous attitude" to motoring laws, Dale W. Lowe, 19, of 382 Douglas, was re-manded in custody by Magistrate William Ostler until today for sentencing on four driving charges.

Lowe heard Prosecutor Cory Stolte read out a long list of previous similar convictions.

Lowe pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was suspended, driving 48 miles an hour in a 30 zone, being a minor without insurance, and using another person's driver's licence.

Magistrate Ostler asked Lowe if it was correct that he had been convicted six previous times of being a minor without insurance.

When Lowe said he didn't know, the magistrate asked him if such convictions were "so often you've lost count?"

John H. Brenton, 42, of 2242 Cadboro Bay Road, pleaded guilty Thursday to discharging a firearm within a municipality, using as his excuse that he was "used to living in the country."

Court heard that Brenton was under the influence of alcohol when he fired a rifle from his back porch Aug. 10 while cleaning the gun.

When a minimum sentence was mentioned, Magistrate Ostler said, "It is not a minimum offence when a person is under the influence of alcohol discharges a firearm." He fined Brenton $50.

Charged with theft under $50, Sheila Fawthorpe, 34, of 2468 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to having taken $18.09 in goods that morning from the Bay, and was fined $100.

Magistrate Ostler was told she had taken the items from six departments on four different floors.

He told the accused, "Shoplifting is like a disease. It's malignant." He said it "starts with one little thing, doesn't it?"

Robert McDonnell, 1241 Rutland was found guilty of keeping a vicious dog after a trial in which several neighbors testified to the dog's behavior.

A 13-year-old paper carrier boy told court the dog bit him while he was collecting on his paper route.

McDonnell was fined $10.

John E. Aitken, 22, was fined

$50 Thursday on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Prosecutor Stolte read a lengthy previous record to court, ranging from arson, theft under $50, and breaking and entering, to common assault.

Aitken's record included

charges from Ontario and from other communities in B.C.

Following Crown testimony on a charge of keeping a vicious dog, Joseph R. Bond, of 614 Marfield, was remanded to Monday for court to hear his defence.

Magistrate Ostler told Bond he was obviously under the influence of an intoxicant, and must appear in more normal manner Monday or face a jail

Appearing with his arm in a sling, Bond told court he was taking a drug for his injury.

Fined $25 Thursday for travelling at speeds of 75 to 80 miles an hour in a 40 zone on the Trans-Canada Highway, 52-year-old bus driver, Roy V. Clark, of 1202 Fort, told police he was on his way to work.

Fined for careless driving: Ronald J. Muir, 20, of 2305

Forbes, $35; Richard R. Wits, 20, of Duncan, $40; Gerald P. Dwyer, 37, of 3900 Rowley, $35; Percival J. Brown, 67, of 4266 Wilkinson, $40; Donald W. Boon, of 6392 Oldfield, $40; and Patrick G. Bailey, 18, of 5589 Oldfield, $40.

Mining Act Rapped

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan criticized the government Thursday for what he called its unseemly haste in getting rid of natural resources which property belonged to the people of B.C.

He was commenting on the announcement by Mines Minister Frank Richter that he had confirmed the seven applications for oil and gas exploration permits allocated by drawings for position earlier this week.

Mr. Strachan referred to "this non-draw, non-raffle, non-lottery" in a reference to the minister's previous expression of fears the public would get a wrong idea from press reports. Mr. Richter said there was no giveaway involved, and the procedure of drawing lots for position was set out in legislation.

"Let's face it," said Mr. Strachan, "almost anything is legal under the Mining Act in this province. I think the minister's action reflects a government attitude which is—get rid of Crown-owned land and the resources that are the people's right—let it go."

Canned Heat Cooled

BRISTOL, England (UPI) — The American pop singing group Canned Heat was banned from performing again at Colston Hall Wednesday night when a fight broke out on stage during their concert.

The Los Angeles singing group and a British pop group, British Small Faces, blamed the hall's management for an onstage uproar while 2,000 screaming teenagers overturned chairs in the audience.

The management said the groups refused to stop their performance after closing time required by British licensing laws and became violent and obscene.

Bennett Roasted by NDP

Premier Bennett was accused by the NDP Thursday of trying to make the Senate a "patronage tool" and "peddling the same old propaganda of falsehood" about Peace River power. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, commenting at a press conference on the B.C. stand that the provinces should appoint senators, said, "The premier wants to make a provincial right out of what has been a federal right to political patronage."

The NDP leader said he stood for the abolition of Canada's upper chamber unless it became an elective body. He added, "The Senate should be a senior house for sober second thought."

PEACE RIVER

He also asked about Mr. Bennett's claims on the eve of the start of production of Peace River power that the NDP had taken the position several years ago that Peace power wasn't required until 1985.

"The premier is peddling the same old propaganda of falsehood about the opposition in this matter of Peace power development," the MP leader said. "He (Mr. Bennett) feels very guilty because he knows this power would not have been developed unless he followed the opposition's advice."

He said the statement by an NDP spokesman concerning the 1985 date for Peace power requirements was actually a quote taken from the 1961 report of the government's own B.C. Energy Board.

PUBLIC PROJECT

Mr. Strachan said the government was advised by the opposition to make the Peace a public project, rather than allow private interests to develop it, and to take over the B.C. Electric, which the government did in 1961 in order to provide the necessary market.

He said the NDP did want the Columbia River power project to go ahead before the Peace, but claimed that "if the government hadn't dragged its feet for half a dozen years" the Columbia could have been started in 1958 instead of 1964.

Regarding the government claim that Peace power will cost an average of 4.4 mills per kilowatt hour delivered in Vancouver, Mr. Strachan said flatly, "I don't believe."

SHOCKING FACT

Mr. Strachan also said he was "shocked" by the admission of Social League president George Driedger that any decrease in the party's members in recent months must be due to new members signed up to pack nominating conventions for the 1966 provincial election failing to keep up their membership.

"This is a shocking admission by the president of Social Credit as to the shenanigans and goings-on within the party."

I call on the people of B.C. to deny the party has told us pay careful attention to the kind that some of their candidates in of government a number of the last election got the nomination they are supporting. The pres- tion by packing the convention."

Reds Send 'Solution' To Mid East Tension

From Reuters-AP

Russia has sent the United States a proposed solution for easing tensions in the Middle East, the state department announced in Washington Thursday.

The disclosure came as Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban rejected in Paris what was described there as a new Russian peace plan. He told reporters there was nothing new in the plan.

In other statements, Israeli and Arab spokesmen said their nations want a peaceful Middle East settlement.

The U.S. state department declined to disclose the contents of the Russian plan.

Reuters news agency quotes informed sources in Washington as saying it was submitted two weeks ago. They said it outlined a four-step plan for easing tensions in the area.

They said it calls for Israel to withdraw to positions held before the June, 1967, war; for a strong United Nations peace-keeping force on the borders; for Arabs to end their 20-year state of belligerency with Israel and for the United States, Russia, Britain and France to provide a general Middle East peace guarantee.

Thant Slaps Superpowers

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant denounced today what he called outmoded strong-arm methods of the superpowers and proposed immediate Big Four talks to head off any threat of a nuclear war.

The comments of the UN chief administrative officer were in the introduction of his annual report to the 125-nation General Assembly. They were sharply critical of the United States and the Soviet Union. He contended the two big powers had been too prone to use force, to settle international problems and asserted:

FUTURE DARK
"If this trend is not reversed, and if the principle of non-intervention in the free destiny of nations is not re-established, the future of international peace and security itself is indeed a very dark one."

The secretary-general proposed a meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers during the current assembly session to counteract "the serious setback to the detente in East-West relations that has resulted from recent events."

He further expressed hope that such a meeting could lead to a summit conference of the Big Four powers—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Cyprus Force To Quit?

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN peace-keeping operation in Cyprus is so deeply in debt that it may have to be suspended soon, Secretary-General U Thant warned Thursday in his annual report to the General Assembly.

Canada, a major contributor to the force and the only country paying for the upkeep of its personnel there, already has announced a partial withdrawal.

Thant said voluntary contributions, the financing method ordained by the Security Council when it established the Cyprus force in 1964, "is unsatisfactory from several points of view."

He said no new voluntary contributions had been made since his report a year ago and that the deficit on the Cyprus operation now is about $13,586,000.

In Ottawa Sept. 17, Defence Minister Cadieux announced Canada will reduce its Cyprus force by 285 men in October, leaving a total of 587 on duty. The reduction is being made at the suggestion of the UN secretariat.

Students Win Free Unions

MADRID (Reuters) — The Spanish government has published a decree giving restless university students the right to organize free student unions.

It thus took a major step towards satisfying one of the main demands which students backed with violent campus demonstrations and pitched battles with police during the last two years.

Standard Layout Studied

The provincial government plans to produce a standardized design for extended-care hospitals in B.C., Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Thursday.

He said this would result in "considerable" savings in capital cost, a more efficient operation, and saving in time for planning this type of facility.

The government will now seek the advice of the hospital committee of the Architectural Institute of B.C. and several consulting engineering firms to seek advice on the best approach to a standardized layout for extended-care hospitals.

A state department spokesman said the Russian approach to Washington was linked with efforts by Gunnar Jarring, United Nations Middle East peace envoy.

In Paris, Eban said: "This plan is identical to a plan presented by the Soviet Union to the Security Council Nov. 22 last year. Israel, together with the majority of governments, rejected this plan."

Eban said the Soviet plan calls for Israel's withdrawal from the ceasefire lines "without the possibility of sure and recognized frontiers."

He said the Soviet plan did not ensure peace or the absolute legal right of Israel to free navigation in international waters.

Meanwhile, Jordanian sources said King Hussein will stress a desire for peace on behalf of the Arabs in talks today with Prime Minister Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart of Britain.

Deputy Premier Yigal Allon of Israel told the Foreign Press Association in London that Israel, though determined not to accept an intermediate settlement under any pressure whatsoever, is not prepared to start a new Middle East war.

"I am sure that if we were left alone for a while and if they had not been encouraged by foreign powers, we could have achieved peace with honor with the Arabs, and peace with security for Israel," Allon said.

United Fishermen Secretary

Unrepentant After Months in Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union secretary Homer Stevens says his 10 months in jail on a contempt of court charge have not made him sorry about what he did.

He said in an interview Wednesday he hoped he would have the courage to take the same course again if ever in a similar position.

Stevens and union president H. Steve Stevens were jailed after they refused to order shoreworkers to handle fish during a strike in Prince Rupert, as directed by a B.C. Supreme Court injunction.

Instead, the union officials conducted a vote of members, asking them if the injunction should be heeded. The vote was negative.

Stevens, 44, was released Wednesday after serving ten months of a one-year sentence. Stevens was released several weeks ago after time off for good behavior.

Stevens said he had been asked, when a clemency plea was being considered, if he was reformed or penitent.

His answer to penal officials: "No, not in the sense you are talking about."

Asked if he would do the same thing again, he replied: "If it came to a test of my conscience and that of the union for somebody to try to force me to dictate to the union members, I hope I would have the courage to say no. Nobody is going to make me a dictator."

"The court will not itself order individual workmen to go to work. But it is wants a union leader to order workers to go back in the midst of a strike at a most crucial point. The court asks him to dictate to the workers and then it covers up with a lot of hypocrisy about the vote being mob rule. This is class prejudice and injustice."

"We are not a corporation. I am not the guy with the biggest share capital. I am only the elected representative and spokesman for the members of the union."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 12-year-old girl who has a problem in the form of a brother. I will be standing there minding my own business and my six-year-old brother Normie will come up and start making a pest of himself. Last night after I told him eight or 10 times to leave me alone he still pestered me so I gave him a light tap on the head. Normie screamed like I was killing him. He ran to my mother and said, "Ruthie hit me."

My mother came at me like I was a monster and called me a terrible kid. She said, "Just for that you can't have any dessert or watch TV and you have to go straight to bed right after supper."

Now that my rat-fink brother knows how to get me into trouble I am helpless. I can't leave home until I am 18 which means I am doomed to put up with this torture for six more years. Please tell me what to do. — SUFFERING GIRL

Dear Girl: Pray for a new baby brother. Normie will then be so busy defending himself against HIS brother that he will leave you alone. When your mother reads this she will probably tell me to drop dead.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife hates housework and anyone who steps inside our place knows it immediately. We have had some arguments over this and I always seem to lose. Liz tells me that any dumbbell can clean a house and she would rather spend her time on more creative things, like sewing or painting or pruning the hedges.

Once in a while you print something in your column about sloppy housekeepers. When you do I hand the paper to Liz and ask her if she recognizes anyone she knows. Yesterday you published such a letter and she got mad and yelled, "Ann Landers can tell women to scrub floors and sweat over the kitchen stove because she doesn't have to do it! I'll bet that dame has hired help all over the place."

Do you have the courage to print this letter and your answer? — MR. OHIO

'I Don't Do Housework'

Dear Mr.: Your wife is right. I don't do housework, but I did plenty of it for the first 10 years of my marriage. And I don't hate it or feel that it was beneath my dignity. My house looked fairly presentable and so did my husband's shirts when I ironed. And nobody ever died from my cooking. Any more questions?

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting plenty fed up with reading that worn out line in your column — "When you marry a divorced man you'd better be prepared to put up with the whole pack — his kids, his ex-wife, her relatives, old friends — bla bla" and more stuff and nonsense. I married a divorced man and I made it plain in advance that I was not going to be bothered with any of the aforementioned kooks. My husband's ex-wife is a religious fanatic who belts down martinis with one hand and reads the New Testament with the other. Her children look just like her and they act like her, too. Sometimes I think they do not even belong to my husband.

Kids belong with their mother, even if she is crazy and I say let her paddle her own canoe. — NO TIES

Dear Ne: That canoe has your husband's children in it — even if they don't look like him. If the waters get choppy, and it sounds as if they might, the children are going to need rescuing from time to time and if your husband is half-way decent he will do it. So get ready, madame.

Miniskirt Stays In Business

TORONTO (CP) — The miniskirt is here to stay if Canadian businessmen have anything to say about it. They indicated their solid approval of miniskirts being worn to work by their female staff members in a demonstration poll at the Canadian National Business Show here Wednesday.

The demonstration was staged by R. L. Crain Co., an Ottawa-based manufacturer of business forms, and of the 719 businessmen polled, 573 approved the short skirts. Six questions were asked and answers were run through a computer.

On the other questions, 547 felt that Canada could survive economically without Quebec, 440 felt the right of public service employees to strike should be abolished, 387 felt that the United States should remain in Vietnam, 538 felt that Canada should recognize Red China and 448 want the proceedings of Parliament shown on television.

The Vietnam poll was the closest with 332 saying they felt the U.S. should pull out.

Fortune Heirs Found

LONDON (Reuters) — British comedian Rolyat's two orphan children have been found more than 40 years after his death — and have come forward to claim their £50,000 fortune.

They are Yette Woods, 46-year-old wife of a southern England innkeeper, and her brother Dan Taylor, 42, now network manager of the Columbia Broadcasting System in New York.

Mrs. Woods, mother of four, heard Wednesday that a firm of lawyers in Birmingham had been trying for years to trace the children of Rolyat, who died in 1927.

A partner in the firm said: "Mrs. Woods told us that she and her brother were the children of Dan Rolyat, who was his surname Taylor backwards."

The fortune is the proceeds from the sale of five stores in the Midlands city of Birmingham.

First Met Clothes on Continent

Like Saying Hello to Old Friends

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — It was like saying hello to old friends when Bergdorf Goodman showed its new European fashion collection in the custom-order salon. I first met the clothes when they were born a couple of months ago in Rome, Barcelona and Paris. Just a few days ago I saw some of them already in action on the chic European women at the Portuguese balls.

Take that long evening gown of smoky grey, gunmetal chiffon with the high neckline, big sleeves, and tailored belt from Yves Saint Laurent's collection. It's the same dress in which Princess Ira Furstenberg looked so smashing at Mrs. Pierre Schlumberger's dance. Worn over nothing or just a little, it's the new way, without beads or glitter, to stand out in a crowded room.

The gunmetal chiffon is typical of the kind of clothes picked by the salon's director, Elieth Roux, who is young, slim, and party-minded. Before she came to Bergdorf she was with Christian Dior in Paris.

In Paris last summer it often seemed as if the fashions were more for the girls at the barricades than for the ladies who are the private customers. What there was for the ladies, and more, Elieth Roux has discovered.

The Bergdorf collection has Cardin's gayest ball gown of orange chiffon. It is covered up to the chin with an ostrich-edged plastron and completely bare in back. In the collection, too, Dior's slithery evening dress of yellow silk jersey with long, tight sleeves and a genuine rustle, and the same designer's black chiffon under a long, black mohair jersey cape. To say nothing of the latest from Givenchy, Patou, and Fabiani.

One of the most wanted things in the collection is a heavy sporty, white satin shirt from Lanvin. In Paris it was shown with jeweled gaucho pants, but Elieth Roux likes it better with a pleated black chiffon skirt over minute black bikini pants.

Another for the young, high-fashion ladies is the rib knit brown jumpsuit tucked into the highest possible wading boots. It comes from Spanish designer, Pertegaz, and Bergdorf showed it under a fisher topcoat from the store's Emerio Paris.

Compared to the evening clothes, the daytime part of the collection is sober. Even so, it gives no real idea of the pall of black that enveloped the collections.

Elieth Roux has taken the curse off of black, black, black by including things like Glitz's carnal color coat and her stockings that have a wide stripe down the front of the legs. A handsome black and white tweed coat over a two-piece dress comes from Fabiani.

There's much less excitement about the short evening dress this season, but Bergdorf Goodman does have Yves

Saint Laurent's black velvet wraparound, completely outlined in black coq feathers. Pertegaz has designed an amusing theatre costume with a topcoat over a matching dress. It looks like pink, and white houndstooth check wool, but, actually, the fabric is lighter weight silk and wool with a faint golden glitter in the weave.

There are lots of hats in the import collection but, for me, the only greets by any designer anywhere are the oversize furs, like the giant sable beret from Givenchy.

Celebrities at the show were Princess Irene Galtzine, here from Rome, and Manola Pertegaz, who came from Barcelona with his pretty niece and a group of friends.

Mrs. Vieri Traxler, wife of the Italian consul-general, was there. It must have made her happy to see the increasing number of Italian fashions.

black sailing yacht was moored only a few yards away. Chesay and Iva Patce-vitch, Francine and Oskar de La Renta, and Doris Stein. Take-home gifts when the launch took off again were decks of cards with a photograph of the yacht on the back.

Debate Agreed Over Sabah

One of the best parties in a week of supper parties in Portugal was the luncheon Doda Embiricos gave on the Gouladris yacht.

Guests went by launch from the yacht club to the boat that was moored in the Estoril Harbor. They were met by Doda wearing a nautical blue sailor suit and carrying her Yorkshire terrier under her arm.

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippines and Malaysia have agreed to start discussions on their conflicting claims to Sabah while 3,000 Filipino students marched on the U.S. embassy for the third straight day to protest America's policy in the dispute.

ERMA BOMBECK Kicks Off

That's Like Dating Someone with Flu

Dialogue overheard at the last big game in the high school stadium: "The team looks great this year." "It should. They've been training all summer. I heard over 200 came out." "I know. I used to come up to the high school at 8 in the morning and they'd be going through calisthenics...about 50,000 pushups, a hundred situps, and then they'd jog for two or three hours. By the time their mothers picked them up, they'd collapse in the car."

"Did you see that manoeuvre?" "Groovy." "How do they memorize all those plays?" "Beats me. Did you know they were second in the district last year?"

"Yeah, that was a great year." "Look at that. What would you call it?" "Backfield in motion, I guess."

"Groovy." "Did you see the end double back?" "They're tough, no doubt about it."

"There's the whistle. A time out." "Any injuries or substitutions?" "Not that I know."

"Didn't you use to date the co-captain?" "Date! Are you kidding? Practise, practise, practise. That's like dating someone with the flu. They're either perspiring, taking liquids or resting."

"I know what you mean. All they want to talk about is the team. They sure look groovy out there. Are the uniforms new this year?"

"Yeah. Wonder what it's like to stand out there under the lights in front of all these people and figure you're what brought 'em out?"

"Groovy. Do you think they're a match for the opposition?" "I don't know why not. There stands 30 of the prettiest pumpon girls who ever made a drill team!"

Tax Base Narrow

Assessments Needed In Oak Bay

By TRUDY KEMP

"Council is quite conscious of the fact that Oak Bay's available land for building purposes is 95 per cent developed," Mayor Fred Hawes told members of the Oak Bay Branch of Association of Women Electors Thursday morning at a meeting in the Falkland Place home of Mrs. C. W. Paulin.

Oak Bay at the Crossroads, was the title of his talk in which he outlined the future of the municipality and some of its problems.

"We are desperately in need of some new assessments to add to the tax roll," he said.

"The City of Victoria and neighboring municipality of Saanich each boast of an increase of up to $20,000,000 in new assessments last year and expect this year to exceed that figure. Oak Bay's increase will be less than 10 per cent of their figures."

Mayor Hawes pointed out that while the city of Victoria and Saanich enjoy this extra tax revenue they are consequently better able to hold their mill rate.

"Oak Bay has no such opportunity. The only hope we have of absorbing what has become to be annual wage increases and general increases in material costs is to accept apartment construction."

"Apartment on a land usage basis per acre will return eight to 10 times the revenue compared with residential usage," he continued.

The mayor went on to explain that Oak Bay with its limited total of 2,400 acres has to rely on a little over 1,100 acres for tax revenue.

"Our open green acres by way of some 200 acres of parklands and two outstanding golf courses make Oak Bay the charming residential area it is. Another 240 acres, or 10 per cent, is taken up for non-taxable educational purpose."

He told the women electors that the Capital Region Planning Board predicts a population increase of 50,000 in the Greater Victoria area by 1980.

"Will Oak Bay be willing to accept a share of this increase or are we going to lower the tweed curtain?"

Sidney Road Death 'Matter of Time'

Parents, Children Rebuked

By NANCY BROWN

A child is going to be killed in Sidney soon, RCMP Constable Jack Hill warned Thursday.

But only 10 out of 500 invited parents attended a safety meeting in Saanichton Hill to hear his warning.

"We haven't had a fatal accident in four years," said Constable Hill, "but it is coming, believe me."

DEFY MOTORISTS

"We are constantly being called to Reshaven Drive because the school children there defy motorists."

"They stand in front of the cars and refuse to move."

WANTED TO EXPLAIN

"I wanted to talk to parents about the problems of bicycle safety tonight, and only 10 have come to this meeting although 500 invitations were sent out from the schools."

"I just wish every parent with a child in school would take a drive down Reshaven when schools are out and see what is going on—I don't believe they know."

Constable Hill said he is not blaming children and lack of parental interest and direction for all of Sidney's problems.

NOT BOTHERED

"Drivers in town leave much to be desired," he said.

"They don't seem to want to be bothered by people in the crosswalks. I've seen drivers whistling down town at 30 miles an hour with kids coming out of school and into the crosswalks."

"Third Street is a race track for cyclists and car drivers."

"I don't think this is a job for teachers and the police alone."

"I think parents should teach their children about safety."

Sidney elementary school principal, Mrs. E. M. Lassfolk, said she has 50 children under eight years of age riding bicycles to school.

"When I went into their classrooms not one of them could tell me anything at all about proper signals."

"We have taken the bicycles right into the classrooms these last two weeks to teach the children some basic facts."

FALSE SECURITY

Mrs. Lassfolk said many parents have been asking for school crosswalks on the Pat Bay Highway.

"School crosswalks are all very well in town," she said, "but on a highway they just give the children a false sense of security."

"If a driver does stop to respect a crosswalk he can cause a 25-car pileup in ferry traffic," she said, "and children will step out right into a crosswalk."

RE-DRAW BOUNDARIES

The only answer to the traffic hazard on the highway, she said, would be passage of the up-coming referendum so that more schools can be built and boundaries re-drawn so that young children will not have to cross the highway.

She suggested that the school should be able to take a child's bicycle riding privileges away for a week for traffic infractions, and asked for public cooperation in reporting children causing trouble.

"Every child hates being asked his name by an adult. If he won't give his name, get a good description, and I'll be able to put my finger on the culprit," she said.

Mayor A. W. Freeman said attendance at the meeting was an indication of the general apathy of parents towards their children.

"They get them off to school and then forget them," he said.

LOT TOUGHER

"We have to get a lot tougher and take away some freedom," said the mayor. "This is a question of education and it is the responsibility of the parents to give it."

"We can only help to make parents aware of the situation and to bring it home to them."

He said council is looking into a bylaw which could boost the jurisdiction of policemen, but added that past attempts had met with little success.

Council had tried to forbid cycling on sidewalks but parents had objected, although children were swooping on and off the sidewalks, a danger to themselves and to pedestrians.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Council had forbidden parking bicycles on town sidewalks, but no action had been taken. When he had taken a boy and his bicycle to the police station the boy had cried and just been told not to do it again.

It was decided to start another Sprocketeers course in the future.

cycle safety for school children during the first two weeks of October.

Last year 118 children took the course, Mrs. F. E. Crosbie said.

A safety committee was formed which will be an offshoot of the recently formed Greater Victoria and district safety council.

Flower Power Blossoming At Student-Run UVic Shop

By SUE MAYNE

Flower power has come to the University of Victoria.

Not flower children, not hippies—but the newest example of imaginative enterprise at the university, a student-owned, student-operated florist service.

The new business, headed by fourth year economics major Bruce Gordon, is calling itself University Florists.

"All our people are students at the University of Victoria," he said. "It's really a student co-operative."

"Our idea is to make wages for the students who work for us, and to offer university students our service at much lower prices," he explained.

The service's first venture into flower business is selling corsages to as many as possible of the thousand students expected to attend the university's annual frosh dance tonight.

Not only a florist service, but other student skills, have a merchandising value at the university, Mr. Gordon said.

He suggested to the university's students' council of forming a students' co-operative to provide services such as tutoring, barbering, typing, laundering, and others, to the more than 5,000 undergraduates enrolled at the university this year.

Kinsmen Give $8,000 For Children's Pool

NANAIMO — An $8,000 gift has been given to Nanaimo civic properties and recreation commission by the city's Kinsmen club for a new wading pool in Bowen Park.

The pool will join existing Kinsmen facilities and it is hoped to have it completed by May.

"The commission is highly delighted at the decision of the Kinsmen to build this much needed facility," said Harry Whipper, commission superintendent.

"The club is certainly to be commended upon its continuing interest in the provision of good recreational facilities in our community."

Plans for the pool call for a maximum depth of 24 inches. It will measure 35 feet by 65 feet. It will help preschool children and those in early grades to become used to water in complete safety.

The gift was announced Thursday by Dave Smart, the club's publicity chairman.

The present Kinsmen pool in the park was built at a cost of about $75,000 — about $35,000 of which was provided by the club.

The remainder of the cost was contributed by other Nanaimo clubs, city council and the provincial government.

Mr. Smart said the Kinsmen decided to expand facilities with a training pool a year ago.

However plans had to be amended because of the cancellation of the federal winter works program and the need to incorporate expensive ancillary features into the project to meet provincial requirements for training pools which have a depth of more than 24 inches.

So the club decided on a pool with a maximum 24-inch depth.

AUCTION AID

Mr. Smart said funds for the project had been raised by the Kinsmen through their bingo and auction projects.

"We are very pleased to be able to add this facility at Bowen Park," he said.

To enable the project to get underway, Mr. Whipper will meet early next week with Philip Stoyan of Vancouver, who designed the existing pool.

CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION

Roger Baubin, commission program supervisor, said the pool will be constructed in concrete and will probably have filter facilities "roughed-in" for installation of machinery at a later date.

It is expected that the pool will also have a chain link fence.

The pool, which will be used in conjunction with present changing facilities, will be built beside the existing Kinsmen pool.

Mr. Whipper has been asked by the Kinsmen to study the possibility of designing the pool for future development as a full training pool for children under four-feet with a depth of perhaps 30 inches.

About 1,800 children were given swimming instruction at Bowen Park.

Hot Time on Old Road

Getting all burned-up over their work are highway department workmen who use huge blow-torch to remove old paint from road marking. Project is part of plan to improve Bowen Road and highway intersection which will provide motorists with clear-cut traffic lanes.—(Agnes Flett)

Aldermen Annoyed By Spending Charge

PORT ALBERNI—Suggestions that too many delegates went from Port Alberni to the recent Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention in Vancouver was described as "a ridiculous attitude" by Ald. Howard McLean at Monday's council meeting.

He and other aldermen replied to criticism that council spent money unnecessarily in having Mayor Fred Bishop, five aldermen and the city manager attend the convention.

"It is ridiculous to have this attitude about council attending a convention on behalf of the city," said Ald. McLean. "Why allow us six votes and six delegates if we are not expected to attend?"

He said there were more than 1100 delegates on hand for the annual event.

"If we don't attend in numbers, how can we back up our own resolutions? If it is beneficial for one or two to attend, three times that number should be three times as beneficial."

Discussions covered pollution, traffic, ferry service and a wide variety of other items included in 107 separate resolutions, almost every one of which was of interest to Port Alberni council, said Ald. McLean.

Ald. George McKnight agreed with his fellow-councillor. He asked that full coverage be given to the council's report on the convention when it is presented "so that our fellow-citizens are not misled about what we did and accomplished at the convention."

Ald. Jim Macfie, who was acting mayor while Mayor Bishop was on holiday, agreed.

"The Union of B.C. Municipalities is a very powerful organization when it comes to making representation to the government and these resolutions are destined to make things better for the citizens of the province. The UBCM is one way to get a good strong voice and get it heard," he said.

City affairs are getting to be big business, said Ald. Charles Blair.

"It has been suggested that in future even more money should be spent in seminars and workshops for new aldermen and refresher courses for older ones.

Cities are becoming big business, needing even more training for municipal councils."

Sleek, Tough Vessel Needs New Owner

PORT ALBERNI — A 59½-foot vessel, which stood up to some of the most savage seas which the west coast can dish up, is up for bids in Port Alberni.

The Mv Skeena, former operated by the Indian Affairs Department in 1953. Until recently she carried the Indian agent, or his staff, on visits to Indian villages up and down the West Coast, most of which are inaccessible except by water or air.

Winter storms sometimes kept the boat locked in a remote anchorage for days at a time, although the big boat often made its way home through weather that kept other boats from venturing out.

Art Peters, chief of the Ombuds, whose people were notable seamen in their small canoes, piloted the Skeena on her original trip from Vancouver to Port Alberni.

He remained in charge of the boat until last spring when he began work with Riley Pilotage, guiding big freighters into the safe Port Alberni harbor.

For a time author and artist George Clutesi acted as watchman on the boat, and found quiet times to work on his book between his other duties.

Now the department has decided that it is more economical and more efficient to use chartered aircraft to reach remote spots.

The vessel is 34 feet, five inches wide and seven feet, seven inches deep, with a 238 horsepower motor providing ample power for a trip anywhere under almost any weather conditions. Weighing 50,700 lbs., the boat sleeps seven in three cabins.

At the moment, her colors are more useful than beautiful, she's efficient and comfortable, rather than luxurious. But quite a few handlubbers, with spray in their eyes are looking over her trim lines visualizing a new white paint job and the minor changes needed to convert her from a floating office to a luxury cruiser.

Pay Raise Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—A contract providing a 36 per cent hourly wage increase over three years has been accepted by two major pulp and paper unions in British Columbia.

Under the contract, negotiated with the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Board, which bargained for the 10 pulp and paper mills involved, the workers will receive an 18 cent hourly increase retroactive to July 1, and another 18 cents July 1, 1969. The contract expires June 30, 1970.

Sound of Silence

Where Did All The People Go?

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — "Central Vancouver Island Health Unit where are you?" said the plaintive note left by reporters who showed up Thursday night to cover the unit's meeting at the Port Alberni Health Unit.

They found the building lighted, doors open, and the main hall set up with screen and slide projectors. There was even a table for the press. All that was lacking was people.

After waiting 15 minutes, they made a quick dash to Port Alberni Health Centre and the city hall to see if there was a mistake in the meeting place. Both were in darkness.

Back to Alberni for another half-hour wait and then came the inspiration the group might have joined the West Coast General Hospital board which also met Thursday. No luck there either.

Concerned because the unit was unlocked, the reporters finally called the RCMP to report the insecure premises.

Eventually a call to the home of George McKnight, Port Alberni health and welfare committee chairman, solved the mystery. The meeting had been cancelled at the last minute because there was no quorum.

The reporters and unit custodian had not been told.

Ney Will Help Housing Study

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney, president of Nanaimo Realty, has been appointed by the Real Estate Institute of British Columbia to help to compile a brief on housing in the province.

I. McNaughton, institute chairman, made the appointment.

"This will enable the Real Estate Institute of B.C. to give their views on housing problems in the province," Mayor Ney said.

The brief, which must be completed by Nov. 25 will be presented to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer's task force on housing.

Mayor Ney said the brief will deal mainly with mortgages, construction, land assembly, legislation, and low-cost housing.

He said it will stress housing problems that particularly affect British Columbia and related problems such as the availability of mortgage funds.

"I believe that this communication will be a step in the right direction and could possibly be the beginning of the elimination of red tape and old-fashioned thinking in the housing industry."

Mayor Ney said that Canada's position in housing development ranks high in the world scene, "but that our U.S. friends stand further ahead of us. Maybe we should be looking south of the border for new techniques."

U.S. LOANS

He referred to the U.S. policy of providing loans for land assembly as one of the ideas for streamlining problems facing the housing industry which Canada should consider.

Mayor Ney will fly to eastern Canada next month to attend the annual real estate convention at Niagara Falls, Ont.

He said he will pay special attention to urban renewal projects in other parts of Canada which could change Nanaimo in future years.

He intends to take a short vacation, including visits to Trinidad and Venezuela, after the convention.

Nanaimo Boy Wins

NANAIMO — Thirteen-year-old Charles Alton of Kilpatrick Road, Nanaimo, has won first prize for British Columbia in the annual Painting in the Parks competition organized by the Federation of Canadian Artists.

Other Nanaimo children who were successful in the contest were: Brenda Clark, 560 Chestnut; Cherrie Jacques, 948 Townsend; Kerrie Dixon, 471 Larch; Lyla Makepiece, RR 2; and Robbie Armstrong, North Cedar. They have been awarded federation scholarships.

Fallers Return

NANAIMO — Twelve fallers who walked off the job Wednesday at McKay Lake, 18 miles southwest of Nanaimo, have returned to work. The men, employed by Cal-Born Northwest Contractors, agreed to return to work under the terms of a disputed contract.

Elected

NANAIMO — School board chairman, Dr. Roy MacMillan has been elected to the nominating committee of the Canadian School Trustees Association.

Dr. MacMillan is attending the annual meeting of the association, being held in Ottawa.

'Steal Goods, Not Integrity'

VANCOUVER — P. A. (Phil) Gagliardi, minister without portfolio, said nobody should worry about thefts of worldly goods.

"Anyone who wants to break into my hotel room and steal everything I have," he said, "can go right ahead — as long as they don't steal my reputation of integrity."

Mr. Gagliardi said he was upset at the theft of $2,500 worth of clothes and movie equipment from his hotel room here.

Catholic Bishops Stymied By Encyclical Statement

By TERRY ROBERTS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian Roman Catholic bishops bogged down Thursday in trying to prepare a statement on the Pope's encyclical that includes a birth control edict.

Discussion of the encyclical also has slowed other business of the Canadian Catholic Conference, a semi-annual meeting of bishops.

"The statement for guidance of priests and Canada's 8,500,000 Catholics was to have been ready for release Thursday night.

"But we haven't reached the two-thirds majority for agreement," a spokesman said. When the general session of the 80 bishops attending the conference rejects a draft statement, it goes back to a commission that has studied the matter.

The commission has been meeting almost round-the-clock since the conference began Monday. It is not known how many drafts have been rejected.

The bishops have warned they will not be producing any starting document because they have accepted the encyclical and are making a statement only on its application.

The bishops have called a news conference today where they may release a statement if it is ready. No one would comment on the possibility of the SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A senior Ottawa official confirmed Thursday that Indians with Grade 1 education and two days of training are dispensing drugs on several reserves in Northern Ontario.

"That's two days better than nothing," remarked Dr. H. A. Proctor, director-general of medical services for the federal health department, speaking by telephone from Ottawa.

He was commenting on a statement by Paul St. Jacques, a former principal at an Indian school who told a service club meeting here Wednesday night about the dispensing of drugs by Indians. Mr. St. Jacques is not an Indian.

He said that although the dispensers are supplied with potent drugs, they are told to check by telephone or radio with a department nurse or doctor before giving medicines that might prove fatal.

The club rules sound tough—each member has to be under 40 and operate a $1,000,000 business as president — but there are 2,300 members of the Young Presidents' Association. North American members are now in convention at the Empress Hotel.

There are 125 members and their wives attending what the organization describes as a fall educational conference here. Only city member of the group is N. R. Morrison, president of Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd. He explained, "The main purpose of YPA is to help members become better presidents through education and the exchange of ideas."

Speakers at the five-day conference include Henry Peterson, chief of the organized crime section of the U.S. department of justice; Dr. Thomas Pettit, professor of management at Simon Fraser University, Trade and Industry Minister Waldo Skilling, and W. C. Mearns, executive director of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

The Young Presidents' Association has an international membership of 2,300 with chapters in 30 countries.

Prospects for Aid Gloomy

LONDON (CP) — Lester official aid "may remain stable" but the task of seeking new sources of aid "may even decline."

Smith is known to have stated in his report that while aid to the Commonwealth has increased in importance in the light of a confidential report to provided mainly by Britain, Commonwealth finance ministers warning that the outlook for increased aid is extremely gloomy.

The report was prepared by Arnold Smith of Canada, Commonwealth secretary-general, and appeared to be reflected to some ministers' communiques Thursday saying the net flow of aid is likely to decline.

Legislature Reopening

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts has announced that the second session of the 26th Ontario Legislature will open Nov. 19. He said the session will run about five weeks with a possible adjournment by Dec. 20.

At a news conference with Roy Jenkins, British chancellor of the exchequer, Smith noted that within the Commonwealth Canada made the largest aid increase last year — about 15 per cent.

Students to End Mexican Rioting?

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Student leaders are expected to call shortly for an end to their demonstrations which it is feared could mar the Olympic Games starting in two weeks.

The sources said the moderate majority of student leaders now are ready to hold direct talks with the government on their grievances, following six days of ugly student police clashes in which seven persons were killed, 100 injured and more than 500 imprisoned.

However, leaders of the 100,000 striking students of the National University and Polytechnic announced Wednesday night they plan a rally today to protest police action.

The moderate leaders, grouped in the self-styled National Strike Council, are expected to issue a manifesto within the next three days calling for an end to the demonstrations and a start to talks with the government, the sources said.

Mexico City appeared normal Thursday following a gun battle between students and police in the northern suburbs Wednesday night in which two bystanders — a street vendor and a nine-year-old boy — were killed.

Student demands include disbandment of the riot police, corps, said to be the toughest in Latin America, dismissal of city police heads and repeal of a penal code clause outlawing public assembly when it can be considered subversive.

Licence Ruling 'Invalid'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court judge Thursday ruled invalid a routine government notice filed in cases where a man is charged with driving while his licence is suspended.

In an appeal, lawyer Robert Kennedy said the notice from the provincial motor vehicles branch informs the court that the licence of the accused was under suspension.

This, the lawyer contended, amounts to hearsay and can not be admitted as evidence. It did allow the appeal and quashed the magistrate's court conviction of a year ago of Wayne Hall on a charge of driving Mr. Justice J. A. MacDonald while disqualified.

Garden Notes

Color in the Winter

By M. V. CHESNUT

In this area, the banana belt of Canada, where quite a few plants keep on growing all winter, it is rather a shame that so many of our best gardeners simply close up shop for the winter months.

It is the easiest thing in the world to have color in the garden all through the dull months of the year, for there are many excellent plants, bulbs and flowering shrubs that have a built-in winter-blooming habit.

I think probably the easiest and most rewarding of these are the winter-flowering heathers. These small shrubs, mostly Erica carnea and its varieties, are natives of Southern Europe, but they have taken to our climatic conditions like a duck takes to water.

While most members of the Erica or heath family insist upon an acid, lime-free soil, Erica carnea couldn't care less; all it asks is an open, sunny position, decent drainage and ordinary garden loam soil—limey or acid, it doesn't matter.

For the most part, these heathers produce short, low-growing branches with smooth, shiny, evergreen leaves arranged in fours along their length.

Starting usually in December, the long clusters of buds will burst into bloom and remain in full flower through snow, frost, fog, cold and rain until late spring.

Each tiny shrub is a compact, low-growing mass of bloom 9 to 12 inches tall and about 18 inches across.

These heathers can be planted singly or in groups, ideal for the rock garden, grand for flanking steps or paths, perfect for adding a touch of winter color to the front rank of the perennial border, and most useful as a ground cover among taller plants.

While individual specimens dotted here and there around the garden are better than no winter flowers at all, it seems to me the winter heathers pay much more substantial dividends when they are grouped in bold masses.

In this way, their sparkling colors really hit you in the eye at a time when most of the landscape is dull and drab.

The grand-daddy of the winter heathers, Erica carnea itself, has blooms of apple blossom pink, but a number of named varieties have been bred from it to give quite a remarkable range of colors.

Erica carnea peacock rubra is a very deep pink; Winter Beauty is a charming rose shade; Springwood White has pure white blossoms with curious brown anthers prominent in the centre of each bloom. Vivella is a vivid carmine, while Brilliance makes a dwarf, compact little bush covering itself with a singularly radiant shade of pink.

Probably the best known of all the Erica carnea varieties is King George, with flowers a bit larger than most of the winter heathers, and in a fine clear pink shade. Atrorubra has the deepest shade in the family, with blossoms in dark crimson.

These plants are not at all expensive to buy, and if you are content to start with very small specimens, the cost shouldn't be more than about $1 each. The two and three-year-old bushes will naturally run a little more.

Winter-flowering heathers need no mollycoddling at all. About the only attentions they demand is a dressing of coarse sand in late fall to keep their feet dry if the winter should be unduly wet, and a shearing back to remove all flower heads after they finish blooming.

JACK SMITH Searches for a Name

The Face is Familiar, But...

"Who was the man," my wife asked. "Who played Franklin Roosevelt in Sunrise at Campobello?"

She was standing in the kitchen doorway, drying a dish. I had just started a new book, Loveland, by Glendon Swarthout. It is a novel about youth in the 1930s; something I can really identify with.

"Is that all?" I asked, looking at her over the book. "You just want to know who played Roosevelt?"

"Yes, I can see him, plain as you, but I can't think of his name for anything."

At least it was a simple enough question, and she knew the name of the movie for a change. Sometimes it can be quite complex, like "what was the name of that girl what's-his-name didn't get, but Robert Montgomery did in that movie where Cedric Hardwicke was her father, or was it Frank Morgan?"

I know, of course, who played Roosevelt in Campobello. "Just a second," I said.

"It's on the tip of my tongue."

I could see him, plain as anything. He really looked a little like Roosevelt, at that. Rather large jaw, high forehead, toothy smile. I saw him with his head tilted back, the way FDR did it, with the long cigarette holder sticking out and up.

"Charles something?" she suggested. "Charles MMM... MMM..."

"That does it!" I said. "If you had kept quiet I would have got it. It isn't Charles at all, and it doesn't begin with an M."

"Then what is it?" "I'm not going to worry about it," I said. "You knowed it right out of my mind."

I went back to my book. Swarthout was describing a vintage car that called the Loveland—telling how to do it.

"... Look listless. Pretend the girl is an inanimate object such as a door or a telephone pole. Curve your right arm about her torso and hang your right hand high."

She was walking across the living room toward the den. "What are you going to do?"

I asked. "I'm going to look it up in your book on the movies. It's driving me crazy."

"No! Don't look it up. Every time you can't remember something, and you look it up, it weakens your memory that much."

I went back to my book. "Hang your right hand high between her shoulder blades. Apply your left palm to her right, aloofly, and extend your arm and hers to make a crowd-cutter. Stand side-by-side and glide her up and down the floor in long, undulant..."

I could see it. I had been there a thousand times, my right hand high between the old shoulder blades, gliding and undulating...

That broad, toothy, high-domed face emerged through the mists of my nostalgia, my right hand high between the old shoulder blades, gliding and undulating...

That broad, toothy, high-domed face emerged through the mists of my nostalgia. I was dancing the Loveland with Constance Bennett. I'd know him anywhere. A matinee idol type. His name was B something.

"It began with a B," I said. "Don't say anything, now. It's coming to me."

My mind played over the possibilities in B. Ba. Be. B. Ba. Ba. Baxter? No. Bartholomew? Close. It was something like that. A name with class. Beuchamp? "Curse it!" I cursed. "Why do you have to know, any way?"

"I don't," she said. "I was just thinking of Humphrey, and then I thought of Roosevelt, and I was trying to remember what he looked like, and then..."

I put my book down and went in the den and looked it up.

"Oh, of course!" she said when I told her. "Now, how could I have forgotten a name like that?"

I went back to Loveland, but it was no use. I couldn't concentrate. Something was bothering me. "All right," I said finally, "who the hell played Eleanor?"

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Julie Turns to Cigars

HOLLYWOOD — You will see a different Julie Harris in The Split. She is sexy, expertly dressed, red-haired and smokes cigars. Except for the cigars, this will be a relief from Julie's recent appearances on Western television shows. Julie is a marvelous actress but except for I Am a Camera, has still to make it in films. Perhaps she will make it in The Split in which she co-stars with former football player Jim Brown. We see the film next month.

It must be nice to have this kind of confidence. Jacqueline Susann's husband Irving Mansfield is saying that Revard the Valley of the Dolls will outgross the original. I have not yet figured what made the first such a hit.

Frank Sinatra who receives $1,000,000 and a percentage for each of his movies, also gets to own the negative after seven years. The only other actor I know who receives this bonus is Cary Grant. I doubt whether Frankie is rich. He splashes his money all over the place. Cary is much more conservative. Daughter Jennifer will be one of the richest girls in the world. And look for Cary to marry again soon. He wants more children.

Raquel Welch decided to forgive that photographer whom she conked on the head with a bottle when she arrived in Spain to make a movie. Two days later she learned he had sold a rather cozy photo of her to one of those magazines for $3,000. There's a moral here somewhere.

And while The Naked Ape was a good book and a best seller, how will Harold Hecht who bought the screen rights, ever make a story suitable for the screen? Producers are so desperate today for properties, they will buy anything that has been successful in another medium.

Before John Astin played the lecherous father in Candy, the closest he had been to smothering a female was kissing Carolyn Jones' forearm in The Adams Family series. When Selma Productions boss Selig Seligman saw the 12 love scenes with Eva Aulin who plays Candy, he promptly gave him the romantic lead with Vivian Lind in Heard No Evil. See No Evil, Speak No Evil. If you ask me the whole thing is pretty evil.

They say that Brigitte Bardot's new record is too hot for North American radio. It isn't the voice, it's the grunts.

SYDNEY HARRIS

"I'll tell you what the trouble is," said a friend, as we were chatting after dinner. "It's too easy to get divorced these days. That's why all these kids make such crazy marriages."

"That may be so," I nodded, "but I think you're putting the cart before the horse. It's too easy to get married—that's the trouble."

"Society," I continued, warning to my subject, "puts up qualifications for everything, but not for marriage. You can't even get a driver's license unless you know how to handle a car, understand the rules of the road, and have no gross physical defects."

"But any idiot can get married, almost on the spur of the moment, as long as he can scrape up $5, or whatever it costs to get a license. There is no preparation for marriage in our society, no training for domestic responsibilities, except a few half-hearted college courses that come too late and say too little."

You might protest that other cultures throughout history haven't set up any qualifications, either, but there is one big difference—this is the first time in the history of the world that Romance, and Romance alone, has been the criterion for making a marriage.

"Until the 20th century, in our country young people largely married for economic motives or because the families wanted them to, or for other practical reasons that might or might not have been justified. But at least they knew there was a reason for getting and staying married."

"If we are going to allow our young people to marry on a romantic basis, the least we can do is insist that they recognize what a marriage entails—the responsibilities,

"But instead, the films, the popular magazines, the best-selling novels, all lead up to the altar, and drop the young people there on their own. Our society emphasizes sexual attraction more than any other in the history of the world—and then we are surprised when our young people find that sexual attraction is not enough to hold a marriage together, and we blame them for breaking up."

"Divorce is a serious problem, a messy business, and I don't think young people take it lightly. But as long as we present marriage merely as a matter of moonlight and roses, they will rush into it headlong. If we made the qualifications for marriage half as difficult as the qualifications for any other job, we'd be attacking divorce where it begins—at the altar."

State Funeral, Then Search for Chief

QUEBEC (CP) — The body of Daniel Johnson, late premier of Quebec, will lie in state in the Quebec legislative assembly until Monday, when a state funeral will be held in the Quebec Basilica, a spokesman for his government said Thursday night.

Jean-Jacques Bertrand, justice minister in Johnson's government, said the premier's body will be placed in the legislative assembly today.

The premier also will lie in state after the funeral, in Montreal and in St. Pie de Hagat, where Johnson maintained a residence in his own provincial constituency of Hagat.

The Quebec Basilica is the church of Maurice Cardinal

Roy, Roman Catholic archbishop of Quebec and primate of Canada, who will conduct the funeral services.

A caucus of Union Nationale

members of the legislative assembly will meet next Wednesday to discuss the choosing of a successor to Johnson.

Bertrand said the meeting

would take place here after the funeral and interment of the premier.

Bertrand, who acted as premier during Johnson's 12-week absence following a heart attack July 3, said the decision to hold the meeting was made at day-long meetings Thursday among the men who served in Johnson's cabinet.

Administrative roles only "in absolutely urgent cases."

Johnson's death leaves the standing in the 108-seat legislature at Union Nationale 55; Liberals 48; Independent 3; vacant 2.

In Montreal, Johnson's body will lie in state at the provincial justice building. At Mrs. Johnson's request, the building will remain open throughout the night.

On Tuesday, the premier's body will be taken to St. Pie de Hagat, 40 miles southeast of Montreal, where it will lie in state at a school until shortly before interment.

Bertrand said the province of Quebec will be officially in mourning until Tuesday. Government offices in the province will be closed Monday.

Johnson

Tributes, Sadness Flow Across Land

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tributes, sadness and shock were expressed Thursday following the death of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

Prime Minister Trudeau, moved by the minister's deepest grief and shock, said Johnson's death deprived the people of Quebec of a dedicated political leader.

"While a staunch defender of the interests of his province, Mr. Johnson nevertheless attached great importance to the preservation of Canadian unity," the prime minister's statement said.

In Paris, President Charles de Gaulle said it was a "very great loss for all Frenchmen, those of France and those of Canada."

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said: "Premier Johnson gave himself totally to his exacting task of administering our sister province."

Prince Edward Island will observe a period of mourning, Premier Alex Campbell said. Quebec Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who lost out to Johnson at a Union Nationale leadership convention in 1961 and who served as acting premier during Johnson's convalescence from a heart attack in July, called the late premier a "seasoned, intelligent and loyal leader."

Ontario Premier John Robarts said Johnson was his "friend of many years." Premier Walter Weir of Manitoba said he "always admired and respected his courage and determination in fighting for his principles."

Johnson was described by Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher as "a man of strong and sincere convictions."

"He was a young man who had much to contribute to his country," said Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

In Montreal, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Johnson's death

"brings to an end a 30-year personal friendship." Flares throughout the city and suburbs.

U.S. Changes UN Guard

Washington Post editor James Wiggins, left, has been appointed to succeed George Ball, right, as U.S. ambassador to the UN. Ball resigned to help campaign for Hubert Humphrey for the presidency. Meanwhile, Ball's predecessor at the UN pot, Arthur Goldberg, Thursday also joined the Humphrey campaign team and urged a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

Bennett to Coquitlam, Others:

Money for School Sites Only When You Need It

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Thursday that Coquitlam and other B.C. municipalities will get B.C. government money for school sites only when they need it.

"As minister of finance I will see that the money is available," he said in an interview. "But it will be up to the school boards and the department of education to decide what is necessary."

"Money now is at its highest price and we only want to build those school rooms and libraries that are necessary."

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has guaranteed more than $400,000,000 since 1955 for school boards and that the amount is more than any other province in Canada.

He said the Coquitlam school board could go out and try and raise its own money but it would be next to impossible on the present money market.

Earlier Thursday a telegram signed by 1,800 persons at a protest meeting in Coquitlam Wednesday night was sent to Mr. Bennett. It demanded the release of $5,000,000 in school funds approved by rate payers.

"We won't release any specific amount," he said. "We'll release the money as required."

"The Coquitlam school board there would be more money to should consider building a build classrooms."

HHH: End U.S. Policing

Put UN in Lines To Guard Peace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey Thursday unveiled his "new strategy for peace" providing for an international force under the UN to take over the role as world policeman.

The Democratic nominee proposed in his speech prepared for San Francisco's Commonwealth Club that an international peacekeeping force be sent to Vietnam, as well as other world hot spots, once hostilities are halted in Southeast Asia.

Humphrey suggested three steps:

- Military assistance programs to help less developed countries prepare units of their armed forces for UN and regional peacekeeping assignments.
- A new effort to resolve the financial and constitutional crisis now hampering the UN.
- Leadership in establishment of a UN peacekeeping fund beginning with $20,000,000 to help the UN launch emergency operations "without delay."

Problems 'Inside Quebec'

Ottawa Fears Vacuum at Top

Turner, Marchand Foresee Troubles

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers said Thursday they foresee problems within Quebec as a result of Premier Daniel Johnson's death.

"He was a great Canadian and I think the fact of his death will cause tremendous problems in Quebec and in some of the negotiations we have before us," Justice Minister John Turner said in an interview.

Forestry Minister Jean Marchand also referred to a constitutional conference planned for December.

Asked whether the Johnson death might result in strained Quebec-Ottawa relations, Marchand said the "main problem" will be within Quebec itself.

The death would weaken somewhat the provincial government's position until a new leader is chosen and "really in control of the situation."

Asked whether the death would result in postponement of the December conference, Marchand said the federal government didn't know.

It would all depend on whether the Union Nationale chose a permanent leader right away or named a temporary one until a party convention could be held to choose Johnson's successor.

Clifford

New Scheme

Pentagon Has War On Poverty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Clark Clifford Thursday night announced an ambitious plan to try to improve American life in the way the Pentagon chooses to spend its billions.

By carefully applying its conscience in deciding how and where to spend defense money, the Pentagon can provide ghetto employment, cheaper hospitals, a lesson in building low-cost housing and education for thousands of young men ill-equipped for work, Clifford said.

While recognizing that "there will be those who will argue that the defense department is not a social welfare institution," Clifford pledged action on a number of fronts.

Quebec Chief Dies in Bed

Former Rival Weeps Openly

MANICOUAGAN, Que. (CP) — Joseph Francis Daniel Johnson, premier of Quebec for two fateful years, died Thursday only one day after reassuring Canadians that his government had no desire to break up the country.

Premier Johnson, 53, died in his sleep here a week after returning to duties following a July 3 heart attack.

HOOR LONG

Johnson's appearance at an hour-long nationally televised news conference Wednesday was marked by his usual mastery of performance in French and English.

He seemed to ally English-Canada's fears of French President de Gaulle's influence in French-Canadian thinking.

Apparently fit after his illness, Johnson confirmed reports he planned to visit de Gaulle in October but stressed that the French leader did not consult him before making scornful remarks about the Canadian Confederation.

"Let's say the general can have his opinions on the Canadian federation," Johnson added. "We have our own, the problem won't be solved in France. The constitutional problem is Canadian. It will be solved in Canada."

But the premier, whose own policy was summed up in the phrase "equality or independence" for French-Canadians—again stated his government's right to cultivate relations with France and other French-language countries.

Johnson came here after his news conference with the intention of presiding Thursday at ceremonies marking the pouring of the last bucket of cement at a giant Hydro-Quebec power project in this community 250 miles northeast of Quebec City.

In a light-hearted session, he visited a tavern with project workers, bought drinks for the house and drank two bottles of

Wallace Bounces Adoring Blonde

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Reports of a romance between George Wallace and a shapely blonde campaign worker were described by his headquarters Thursday as "false, untrue" and an attempt to damage his campaign for the presidency.

The statement added that the girl, Ja-Neen Welch, had been dismissed from the campaign force.

Wallace, former governor of Alabama, is a third-party candidate in the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential elections. His wife Lurleen died of cancer on May 7.

Thursday's statement from Wallace's headquarters came after Miss Welch, who runs an advertising agency in Indianapolis, told reporters she had been travelling "full time" with Wallace in his campaign plane and added: "I wouldn't object to being the next Mrs. Wallace."

The statement said Miss Welch's "erratic behavior, including her reports of having visions, extrasensory perception and being a seer," led to the decision to dismiss her from the campaign last Friday.

In Indianapolis, Miss Welch, who gives her age as 26, said: "I do not change my feelings toward the governor. I'm still very much in love with him."

Threats Against Air Executives Spread to B.C.

'Better Examine Your Conscience, Garage'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Thursday that two Vancouver executives have received threatening letters which are presumed linked with a series of bombings and similar letters in Toronto Tuesday.

Letters were received by David McGuinness, general manager of Hawker Siddeley's aircraft manufacturing operation here, and John Smith, 40, Vancouver manager of Cyanamid of Canada, a chemical company.

Bombs exploded Tuesday outside the Toronto homes of 13 men who either are, or have been, connected with Hawker Siddeley. Letters later accused them of complicity with the U.S. in the Vietnam war.

Police said the letters received here were mailed in Vancouver but there might be some significance in the fact that both sets of letters used the word "complicity."

Mr. McGuinness' letter, which arrived yesterday in a plain white envelope, read:

"You had better examine carefully both your conscience and your garage because you too are guilty of complicity."

Police found nothing in the garage. They described the letter as the work of a "peace-type writer."

"In Toronto Wednesday, a spokesman for de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, a Hawker Siddeley subsidiary, said the company formerly manufactured Caribou aircraft for U.S. forces in Vietnam."

Government Employees

By DON COLLINS

Amid denials by the moderate element, there were more indications Thursday that the militants of the 11,000-member Government Employees' Association plan a show of strength at the association's Vancouver convention Oct. 4 and 5.

Norman Thornber of Victoria, the man most closely associated with the move to reshape the association, confirmed that he was ready to go after the top job.

He said he was drafting his application for the position of general secretary, advertised as a $15,000-a-year post.

RESIGNATION SUBMITTED

Edward O'Connor of North Vancouver, the present general secretary, submitted his resignation recently but agreed to remain on the job until a new man was made familiar with the role.

Leaders of a more moderate faction in Victoria said Mr. O'Connor had not tendered his resignation, but Mr. Thornber said Thursday:

"I was at the executive meeting that accepted his resignation with regret."

The long list of resolutions prepared for the convention includes some complaining about weak leadership and demanding the replacement of Mr. O'Connor.

CLAIM DISPUTED

Mr. Thornber took issue with a claim of Victoria branch president Alec Braidy that any discontent seemed to be confined to the ferry workers.

He said many of the stronger resolutions came from highway workers and others not connected with the ferries.

Mr. Thornber is business agent for the marine branch, which was involved in the two-week ferry strike earlier this year. He said some other branches of the association had become more militant after "seeing what the ferry workers were able to achieve."

MARINE BRANCH

The marine branch, which makes up about 10 per cent of the association, is the only branch affiliated with the B.C.

Federation of Labor and local labor councils.

The association as a whole is affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress. One of the decisions of the CLC convention at Toronto last May was that all affiliates should belong as well to their provincial labor federations.

A B.C. Federation of Labor official has been picked for the first time as the keynote speaker for the government employees' convention. He is Ray Haynes, the federation's secretary-treasurer.

CONFIDENCE VOTE

"As far as I'm concerned,"

Mr. Thornber said Thursday "the one point to be decided by this convention is whether or not the civil servants in this province have confidence in the present executive."

He said there was concern over the fact that more than half the civil servants in the province — 11,000 — had not joined the association.

Like some others, he said, he felt the top job should be open to election.

He said he wanted to make one other point clear.

"It is not our intention in any way to hurt the association. Since we are members of the association, we want to be instrumental in strengthening it."

Militant forces have said before that they want collective bargaining rights.

Farms, Oil—He Knows the Ropes

By RAY KERR

Farming, ranching, oil research, shipbuilding and chess may be more than enough for one man's lifetime.

Thomas Lokier, 2455 Hamiota, is still shaking for more. Mr. Lokier will be celebrating his 100th birthday Wednesday.

Among those expected will be other Silver Threads members and officials as well as civic representatives from Victoria.

Mr. Lokier was born in Shropshire, England, Oct. 2, 1868. He was a year old at the time of Confederation but he found Canada attractive while a young man.

Around the turn of the century, he moved to Medicine Hat, Alta., taking about 100 cattle with him. In 10 years, in partnership with an Albian, he had a ranch with 1,700 head of cattle.

While in Medicine Hat, Mr. Lokier became profitably involved in oil and gas.

In 1942, though already 76, Mr. Lokier entered another colorful phase of his life. After settling in Victoria, he became active in Vancouver Island affairs. In the late 50s, in conjunction with Oak Bay Kiwanis Club, he was instrumental in a petition being forwarded to Ottawa and Premier Bennett, seeking the establishment of a low-rate ferry link with the mainland.

In his spare time, he still enjoys playing chess, although because of his advanced age he prefers having a game at home.

For the big century celebrations, his son William is coming from Newmarket, Alta., and the Lokier clan will have open house on Thursday.

Motoring Offences 'Contemptuous Attitude'

Courtroom Parade

Reprimanded Thursday in Central Magistrate's Court for his "contemptuous attitude" to motoring laws, Dale W. Lowe, 19, of 382 Douglas, was remanded in custody by Magistrate William Ostler until today for sentencing on four driving charges.

Lowe heard Prosecutor Cory Stoltz read out a long list of previous similar convictions.

Lowe pleaded guilty to driving while his licence was suspended, driving 48 miles an hour in a 30 zone, being a minor without insurance, and using another person's driver's licence.

Magistrate Ostler asked Lowe if it was correct that he had been convicted six previous times of being a minor without insurance.

When Lowe said he didn't know, the magistrate asked him if such convictions were "so often you've lost count?"

John H. Brenton, 42, of 2245 Cadboro Bay Road, pleaded guilty Thursday to discharging a firearm within a municipality, using as his excuse that he was "used to living in the country." Court heard that Brenton was under the influence of alcohol when he fired a rifle from his back porch Aug. 10 while cleaning the gun.

When a minimum sentence was mentioned, Magistrate Ostler said, "It is not a minimum offence when a person under the influence of alcohol discharges a firearm." He fined Brenton $50.

Charged with theft under $50, Sheila Fawthorpe, 34, of 2463 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to having taken $18.09 in goods that morning from the Bay, and was fined $100.

Magistrate Ostler was told she had taken the items from six departments on four different floors.

Robert McDonnell of 1241 Rutland was found guilty of keeping a vicious dog after a trial in which several neighbors testified to the dog's behavior.

A 13-year-old paper carrier boy told court the dog bit him while he was collecting on his paper route.

McDonnell was fined $10.

John E. Aitken, 22, was fined

$30 Thursday on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Prosecutor Stoltz read a lengthy previous record to court, ranging from arson, theft under $50, and breaking and entering, to common assault.

Aitken's record included

charges from Ontario and from other communities in B.C.

Following Crown testimony on a charge of keeping a vicious dog, Joseph R. Bond, of 614 Marlfield, was remanded to Monday for court to hear his defence.

Magistrate Ostler told Bond he was obviously under the influence of an intoxicant, and must appear in more normal manner Monday or face a jail

Appearing with his arm in a sling, Bond told court he was taking a drug for his injury.

Quebec Chief Dies in Bed

Former Rival Weeps Openly

MANICOUAGAN, Que. (CP) — Joseph Francis Daniel Johnson, premier of Quebec for two fateful years, died Thursday only one day after reassuring Canadians that his government had no desire to break up the country.

Premier Johnson, 53, died in his sleep here a week after returning to duties following a July 3 heart attack.

ROUR LONG

Johnson's appearance at an hour-long nationally televised news conference Wednesday was marked by his usual mastery of performance in French and English.

He seemed to allay English-Canada's fears of French President de Gaulle's influence in French-Canadian thinking.

Apparently fit after his illness, Johnson confirmed reports he planned to visit de Gaulle in October but stressed that the French leader did not consult him before making scathing remarks about the Canadian Confederation.

"Let's say the general can have his opinions on the Canadian federation," Johnson added. "We have our own. The problem won't be solved in France. The constitutional problem is in Canada."

Johnson came here after his news conference with the intention of presiding Thursday at ceremonies marking the pouring of the last bucket of cement at a giant Hydro-Quebec power project in this community 250 miles northeast of Quebec City.

In a light-hearted session, he visited a tavern with project workers, bought drinks for the house and drank two bottles of

Ray, Roman Catholic archbishop of Quebec and primate of Canada, who will conduct the funeral services.

A caucus of Union Nationale members of the legislative assembly will meet next Wednesday to discuss the causing of a successor to Johnson.

Bertrand said the meeting would take place here after the funeral and interment of the premier.

Bertrand, who acted as premier during Johnson's 12-week absence following a heart attack July 3, said the decision to hold the meeting was made at day-long meetings Thursday among the men who served in Johnson's cabinet.

Asked if this means that Quebec will be without a government until next week, he said:

"According to some authors, the most absolute rule is that all must ship with the death of a prime minister. Ministers are only MLAs now. Other authors take exactly the opposite view."

Bertrand added that "we will apply the rule of prudence" and the men who served in Johnson's cabinet will attend to normal administrative roles only "in absolutely urgent cases."

Johnson's death leaves the standing in the 108-seat legislature at Union Nationale 55; Liberals 48; Independent 3; vacant 2.

In Montreal, Johnson's body will lie in state at the provincial justice building. At Mrs. Johnson's request, the building will remain open throughout the night.

On Tuesday, the premier's body will be taken to St. Pie de Bagot, 40 miles southeast of Montreal, where it will lie in state at a school until shortly before interment.

Bertrand said the province of Quebec will be officially in mourning until Tuesday. Government offices in the province will be closed Monday.

Tributes, Sadness Flow Across Land

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tributes, sadness and shock were expressed Thursday following the death of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson.

Prime Minister Trudeau, moved by the "deepest grief and shock," said Johnson's death deprived the people of Quebec of a dedicated political leader.

"While a staunch defender of the interests of his province, Mr. Johnson nevertheless attached great importance to the preservation of Canadian unity," the prime minister's statement said.

In Paris, President Charles de Gaulle said it was a "very great loss for all Frenchmen, those of France and those of Canada."

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said, "Premier Johnson gave himself totally to his exacting task of administering our sister province."

Prince Edward Island will observe a period of mourning, Premier Alex Campbell said.

Quebec Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who lost out to Johnson at a Union Nationale leadership convention in 1961 and who served as acting premier during Johnson's convalescence, from a heart attack in July, called the late premier a "seasoned, intelligent and loyal leader."

Ontario Premier John Robarts said Johnson was his "friend of many years."

Premier Walter Weir of Manitoba said he "always admired and respected his courage and determination in fighting for his principles."

Johnson was described by Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher as "a man of strong and sincere convictions."

"He was a young man who had much to contribute to his country," said Alberta Premier E. C. Manning.

In Montreal, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Johnson's death

"brings to an end a 20-year personal friendship." Flags throughout the city and sub-

U.S. Changes UN Guard

Washington Post editor James Wiggins, left, has been appointed to succeed George Ball, right, as U.S. ambassador to the UN. Ball resigned to help campaign for Hubert Humphrey for the presidency. Meanwhile, Ball's predecessor at the UN post, Arthur Goldberg, Thursday also joined the Humphrey campaign team and urged a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam.

Bennett to Coquitlam, Others:

Money for School Sites Only When You Need It

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Thursday that Coquitlam and other B.C. municipalities will get government money for school sites only when they need it.

"As minister of finance I will see that the money is available," he said in an interview.

"But it will be up to the school boards and the department of education to decide what is necessary."

"Money now is at its highest price and we only want to build those school rooms and libraries that are necessary."

Mr. Bennett said the B.C. government has guaranteed more than $400,000,000 since 1955 for school boards and that the amount is more than any other province in Canada.

He said the Coquitlam school board could go out and try and raise its own money but it would be next to impossible on the present money market.

Earlier Thursday a telegram signed by 1,500 persons at a protest meeting in Coquitlam Wednesday night was sent to Mr. Bennett. It demanded the release of $5,000,000 in school funds approved by ratepayers.

"We won't release any specific amount," he said. "We'll release the money as required."

"The Coquitlam school board there would be more money to should consider building a build classrooms."

second school on existing sites. "We must protect the local before buying more land. Then taxpayers."

HHH: End U.S. Policing

Put UN in Lines To Guard Peace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey Thursday unveiled his "new strategy for peace" providing for an international force under the UN to take over the role as world policeman.

The Democratic nominee proposed in his speech prepared for San Francisco's Commonwealth Club that an international peacekeeping force be sent to Vietnam, as well as other world hot spots, once hostilities are halted in Southeast Asia.

stages:

● Military assistance programs to help less developed countries prepare units for UN and regional peacekeeping assignments.

● A new effort to resolve the financial and constitutional crisis now hampering the UN.

● Leadership in establishment of a UN peacekeeping fund beginning with $20,000,000 to help the UN launch emergency operations "without delay."

Police said the letters received here were mailed in Vancouver but there might be some significance in the fact that both sets of letters used the word "complicity."

DEATH STIRS NEW FEARS

Turner, Marchand Foresee Troubles

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet ministers said Thursday they foresee problems within Quebec as a result of Premier Daniel Johnson's death.

"He was a great Canadian and I think the fact of his death will cause tremendous problems in Quebec and in some of the negotiations we have before us," Justice Minister John Turner said in an interview.

Another view

Forestry Minister Jean Marchand also referred to a constitutional conference planned for December.

Asked whether the Johnson death might result in strained Quebec-Ottawa relations, Marchand said the "main problem" will be within Quebec itself.

The death would weaken somewhat the provincial government's position until a new leader is chosen and "really in control of the situation."

NO IDEA

Asked whether the death would result in postponement of the December conference, Marchand said the federal government didn't know.

It would all depend on whether the Union Nationale chose a permanent leader right away or named a temporary one until a party convention could be held to choose Johnson's successor.

Somehow the provincial government's position until a new leader is chosen and "really in control of the situation."

Asked whether the death would result in postponement of the December conference, Marchand said the federal government didn't know.

It would all depend on whether the Union Nationale chose a permanent leader right away or named a temporary one until a party convention could be held to choose Johnson's successor.

Somehow the provincial government's position until a new leader is chosen and "really in control of the situation."

Wallace Bounces Adoring Blonde

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Reports of a romance between George Wallace and a shapely blonde campaign worker were described by his headquarters Thursday as "false, untrue" and an attempt to damage his campaign for the presidency.

The statement added that the girl, Ja-Neen Welch, had been dismissed from the campaign force.

Wallace, former governor of Alabama, is a third-party candidate in the Nov. 3 U.S. presidential elections. His wife Lurleen died of cancer on May 7.

Thursday's statement from Wallace's headquarters came after Miss Welch, who runs an advertising agency in Indianapolis, told reporters she had been travelling "full-time" with Wallace in his campaign plane and added: "I wouldn't object to being the next Mrs. Wallace."

The statement said Miss Welch's "erratic behavior, including her reports of having visions, extraneous perception and being a seer," led to the decision to dismiss her from the campaign last Friday.

In Indianapolis, Miss Welch, who gives her age as 26, said:

"It does not change my feelings toward the governor. I'm still very much in love with him."

Threats Against Air Executives Spread to B.C.

'Better Examine Your Conscience, Garage'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said Thursday that two Vancouver executives have received threatening letters which are presumed linked with a series of bombings and similar letters in Toronto Tuesday.

Letters were received by David McGuinness, general manager of Hawker Siddeley's aircraft manufacturing operation here, and John Smith, 40, Vancouver manager of Cyanamid of Canada, a chemical company.

Bombs exploded Tuesday outside the Toronto homes of 13 men who either are, or have been, connected with Hawker Siddeley. Letters later, accused them of complicity with the U.S. in the Vietnam war.

Police said the letters received here were mailed in Vancouver but there might be some significance in the fact that both sets of letters used the word "complicity."

Mr. McGuinness' letter, which arrived unsigned in a plain white envelope, read:

"You had better examine carefully both your conscience and your garage because you are guilty of complicity."

Police found nothing in the garage. They described the letter as the work of a "peace-loving type writer."

In Toronto Wednesday, a spokesman for de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, a Hawker Siddeley subsidiary, said the company formerly manufactured Caribou aircraft for U.S. forces in Vietnam.

Militants Preparing Convention Strength

By DON COLLINS

Amid denials by the moderate element, there were more indications Thursday that the militants of the 11,000-member Government Employees' Association plan a show of strength at the association's Vancouver convention Oct. 4 and 5.

Norman Thornber of Victoria, the man most closely associated with the move to reshape the association, confirmed that he was ready to go after the top job.

He said he was drafting his application for the position of general secretary, advertised as a $15,000-a-year post.

RESIGNATION SUBMITTED

Edward O'Connor of North Vancouver, the present general secretary, submitted his resignation recently but agreed to remain on the job until a new man was made familiar with the role.

Leaders of a more moderate faction in Victoria said Mr. O'Connor had not tendered his resignation, but Mr. Thornber said Thursday:

"I was at the executive meeting that accepted his resignation with regret."

CLAIM DISPUTED

Mr. Thornber took issue with a claim of Victoria branch president Alec Brody that any dissent seemed to be confined to the ferry workers.

He said many of the stronger resolutions came from highways workers and others not connected with the ferries.

Mr. Thornber is business agent for the marine branch, which was involved in the two-week ferry strike earlier this year. He said some other branches of the association had become more militant after "seeing what the ferry workers were able to achieve."

MARINE BRANCH

The marine branch, which makes up about 10 per cent of the association, is the only branch affiliated with the B.C.

Federation of Labor and local labor councils.

The association as a whole is affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress. One of the decisions of the CLC convention at Toronto last May was that all affiliates should belong as well to their provincial labor federations.

A B.C. Federation of Labor official has been picked for the first time as the keynote speaker for the government employees' convention. He is Ray Haynes, the federation's secretary-treasurer.

CONFIDENCE VOTE

"As far as I'm concerned," Mr. Thornber said Thursday, "the one point to be decided by this convention is whether or not the civil servants in this province have confidence in the present executive."

He said there was concern over the fact that more than half the civil servants in the province — 14,000 — had not joined the association.

Like some others, he said, he felt the top job should be open to election.

He said he wanted to make one other point clear. "It is not our intention in any way to hurt the association. Since we are members of the association, we want to be instrumental in strengthening it."

Militant forces have said before that they want collective bargaining rights.

Farms, Oil—He Knows the Ropes

By RAY KERR

Farming, ranching, oil research, shipbuilding and chess may be more than enough for one man's lifetime.

Thomas Lokier, 565 Hamoka, is still shooting for more. Mr. Lokier will be celebrating his 100th birthday Wednesday.

Among those expected will be other Silver Threads members and officials as well as civic representatives from Victoria.

Mr. Lokier was born in Shropshire, England, Oct. 2, 1888. He was a year old at the time of Confederation but he found Canada attractive while a young man.

Around the turn of the century, he moved to Medicine Hat, Alta., taking about 100 cattle with him. In 10 years, in partnership with an Albertan, he had a ranch with 1,700 head of cattle.

While in Medicine Hat, Mr. Lokier became profitably involved in oil and gas.

In conjunction with Oak Bay Kiwanis Club, he was instrumental in a petition being forwarded to Ottawa and Premier Bennett, seeking the establishment of a low-rate ferry link with the mainland.

During his earlier years in Victoria, Mr. Lokier worked at shipbuilding in the Dockyard, being involved in work on 15 different vessels.

In his spare time, he still enjoys playing chess, although because of his advanced age

he prefers having a game at home.

For the big century celebration, his son William is coming from Nearwater, Alta., and the Lokier clan will have open house on Thursday.
